Ag Progress Days draws largest crowd ever

BY CURT HARLER

OCK SPRINGS — Penn 's 1980 Ag Progress n concluded Thursday as ecord 252 commercial ibitors and an estimated 00 visitors headed for e after the three day event. It was the largest turnout ever.

With the exception of two showers Wednesday the weather held fine as farmers watched $20 million worth of farm equipment and machinery in action.

Following the show's theme "Penn State Agriculture—125 Years of Progress" were numerous livestock exhibits, home economics demonstrations, and field displays.

Grand championships in both the state hay crop silage show and the state hay show once again went to long-time winners.

Milton Hershey School Farms, Hershey, showed the grand championship hay crop silage sample. The first cutting WL 311 sample was made at early bud on May 24 and stored in a 40 year old tile silo.

The sample had a pH of 4.7, 23 percent crude protein and 65 percent TDN.

Reserve champ sample was shown by C. Richard Criswell, R1 Lewisburg, a low moisture legume-grass mixture.

Division winners included Herman Espy, Spruce Creek; Minch Brothers, R1 West Alexander; and Morgan Glo Farm, Bridgeville.

The hay show gold ribbon went to Jay McCarrell, Eighty Four, who showed a heat finished later cutting of Conestoga alfalfa to the top spot.

Reserve championship went to Paul Bollinger, R2 Meyerstown, who exhibited a field cured later cutting of alfalfa.

Pequea wants strict farm zoning

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

WILLOW STREET — ingent new zoning ulations governing the ration of farms and owable numbers of stock are proposed for quea Township.

What this ordinance uld do is create a lot of Old cDonald's Farms in quea Township," At- ney James Thomas said the recently proposed inance revisions.

homas has been hired by oup of farmers to protect interests in the an- pated zoning battle.

earings on the proposal planned for Thursday ning, September 4, at 0 p.m.; and Wednesday ning, September 24, at 7 p.m. Both the meetings will be at the Township Building.

Karl Hess, Vice Chairman of the Pequea Planning Commission, said the Planning Commission expected zoning revisions, but "if the proposed agricultural revisions go through, all that will be left of agriculture in the township will be cash grain farming."

What has farmers in an uproar is a set of proposed zoning regulations which Thomas termed "extremely restrictive."

In effect, the proposals would require special exceptions for any poultry houses or confined livestock operations provided certain conditions are met.

One of those conditions, Item 3, states: "No new structure shall be constructed nor existing structure expanded when such structure will be utilized to house more than five hundred (500) poultry birds or fifty (50) pigs or hogs."

Item 5 states, "there shall be no more than 3 head of livestock per one (1) acre of farmland."

The revisions further state "the Zoning Hearing Board shall have the right to direct the timing, regularity and manner of removing wastes from such building."

Any structure for confinement housing of animals over the 500/50 numbers would not be permitted without a variance.

Frank Myers, a farmer and member of the planning commission, said that while the planning commission helped to formulate other

At 3rd Pa. Tested Boar Sale

Dutch Valley buys top boar

BY SHEILA MILLER

STATE COLLEGE — The h-selling, high-indexing r at Pennsylvania's 3rd rformance Tested Boar le will be coming to ncaster County.

Mark Nestleroth, of Dutch lley Farm near Manheim, d $1475 for the Yorkshire r bred by Richard D. ler, Millers Yorkshire m, R1 Spring Grove, rk County. The boar came t of the top pen of four rs entered in this year's t.

Sired by the second place r in the 1978 Delaware r Test, the top boar completed the Penn State test with an Average Daily Gain of 2.67, taking 123 days to reach 230 pounds. The Miller Yorkshire's statistics for loin eye was 5.47 square inches, with the percent lean cut coming in at 60.9.

Said Nestleroth, "I believe in test records — not what you see when you're looking at the hog. The less you have to feed, the less money you have to spend for pound of gain. It's what finally gets in the checkbook that counts."

The high-indexing Yorkshire will go to work in the Dutch Valley commercial herd, said Nestleroth. "When you market 5000 hogs a year, you look for growth and feed efficiency." Also in the purebred Duroc and Landrace swine business, Nestleroth said the Yorkshire boar will be added to get a three-way cross for their commercial feeder pigs.

Dutch Valley also purchased the second high selling boar at the Wednesday evening sale. This Yorkshire came out of the second high indexing pen bred by Joel R. Stern, of Red

'24 once, twice, $24,000;' Lancaster heifer tops sale

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

WILLOW STREET — Roger Mills, herdsman and partner in Spring-Belle Farm, 1343 Gypsy Hill Road, has a tape recording he'll be playing to children and grandchildren for years to come.

The end of the tape runs something like this:

"I have 24. Do I hear 24 - 5?

"24 once. 24 twice. 24 gone.

"Sold to Herbert Hait of Relay Farm for $24,000."

That's the price paid for a home-raised Lancaster County Holstein heifer, Spring-Belle Apollo Arise, at the Wintercrest Invitational Sale in Pratts Hollow, N.Y., this week.

The $24,000 price tag topped the sale and bested the second highest price by some $9000.

"We had been offered $15,000 at the farm and were asking $20,000," Mills explained.

"So, you can see that we weren't too far off on our price.

"We took a tape recorder along and got the bidding all down. Now, we can look back and play it from time to time for the children."

Mills and his wife are partners in Spring-Belle Farm with Fury H. Frey and sons.

Another Lancaster County Holstein, Len-Lyn Jerry Katrina-Et, consigned by Galen Crouse, of Schoeneck, brought $8500 at the sale.

Spring-Belle Apollo Arise is out of Spring-Belle Arline, 2E-92, by Hilltop Apollo Ivanhoe. As a five-year-old, the dam produced 29,338 pounds of milk, 1195 fat at 4.1 percent.

Two maternal sisters are Spring-Belle High Hope and Spring-Belle Elevation Pearl. High Hope was an All-American as an open yearling and is now owned

Lehigh Valley faces severe crop losses

NAZARETH — Six weeks hot dry conditions across ehigh and Northampton unties may result in crop sses of up to 50 percent in e usually fertile Lehigh lley.

The last soaking rain in the o county area was in June. ce then only scattered undershowers have been ported.

The National Weather rvice at the Allentown-thlehem-Easton Airport corded a total of July fall of 1.50 inches. This is 6 inches below normal. In ugust only .83 inches has en recorded to date. It ould be 2.49 inches.

Showers have doused fields in one area and left others only a few hundred yards away standing dry. Generally farms located in the northern sections have faired better.

The National Weather Service records only the rainfall at the airport.

Judith Noyales of the Northampton County ASCS said she expects 50 bushel per acre corn in some areas.

"We've had a lot of inquiry about the ASCS programs available," she said. Twenty applications for low yield insurance have been received already, and she expects many more to be filed as farmers begin looking more closely at their fields.

Last year only two such applications were received.

Ivan Handwerk of the Lehigh County ASCS office also reports more than usual interest in ASCS programs. He pointed out that, at the moment, ASCS programs are only applicable to corn, wheat, barley and sorgham.

David Dunbar, extension agent in Lehigh County said that potatoes may be the most seriously affected crop in his area. Growers are expecting a yield of one half normal. Peaches, he said, have also been hurt.

Farmers in both counties have little hope for the alfalfa crop. Spring rains

Sharing money-making ideas in milk production.

(Top) Dairyman Ken Myer, Elizabethtown, Pa., discusses the latest developments in herd management with Penn Pro Salesman Steve Leiser (Bottom) Pennfield's Dennis Rebert reviews feeding techniques with George Rohrbaugh, Manager, Leader Farms, York, Pa

When it comes to dairy farming a little learning can be a profitable thing. Milk production can soar. Butterfat can jump higher. Profits can increase. That's why Pennfield spends so much time educating its own Penn Pro salesmen as well as dairy farmers in the latest nutritional, herd health, and farm management developments. These educational programs are, of course, an excellent supplement to the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. And here's how the service works: 1. We collect samples of your forage. 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forage. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both, of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the printout will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows nutritional requirements.

Try the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. For better milk yields. For better profits. There's no cost or obligation. Just phone us today at Pennfield Feeds. Local calls: Lancaster 299-2561, Red Lion 244-4511. In 717 and 215 areas dial toll-free 800-732-0467. Pennfield Feeds, Rohrerstown Road, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Midweek prices on slaughter steers ranged unevenly 50-1.25 lower. Heifers were mostly 1.00 lower. Cows closed 50-1.00 lower and bulls were firm.

Four day receipts this week 10,800; last week 14,000; year ago 15,200.

Slaughter steers and heifers sold at firm prices on the initial session under a good demand. Sharp price declines were enforced on Tuesday, however, in reflection of a downward plunging carcass trade, and most buying interests were competitive only for minimum numbers. This was the greatest weekly downturn in nearly three months. Best demand continues to enter on Choice and Prime 1150-1300 lbs. Steers and same grade 950-1050 lbs. heifers. Feeder buyers were only mildly active on two-way steers suitable for a short turn in the feedlot. Slaughter steers made up approximately 46 pct of the week's total and heifers 34 pct; much of the supply was Good to Average-Choice. Cows made up 12 pct and feeders 6 pct.

Lancaster Farming says...

Here's a stupid zoning proposal

One of the most stupid, short-sighted proposals ever to come out of local government will be discussed in Pequea Township on September 4 and again September 24.

Proposed Article 1912 actually is written to ban any structure which would house more than 500 poultry birds or more than 50 pigs or hogs. It would forbid more than 3 head of livestock to be kept per acre of farmland.

There are other equally inane provisions which would hog tie any kind of farming in the township.

We think it no accident that the tentative date for adoption of this asinine measure is the exact same day that the Lampeter Fair will open. While the farmers are away from home showing their livestock, the local lawmakers will be attempting to rob them of their right to farm.

Poultry houses, confinement livestock operations, and mushroom houses, among others, would no longer be considered agriculture but agri-business, in itself a uniquely silly idea.

Why the rush to put the screws to Pequea Township farmers?

Pequea has no flood plan yet—but must have one by September 30. Most other townships in the state took care of that project two years ago.

Now that the Township finally is getting around to that project, it also wants to railroad through a whole zoning package.

The comprehensive plan drawn up in the 1960s and still in use today is woefully out of date. All of the farms along the railroad line wiped out by Hurricane Agnes are zoned industrial. That plan still recognizes the Southern Beltway proposal which has been dormant for 20 years.

Along with shaking the cobwebs out of Pequea Township's master plan, farmers should shake the cobwebs out of the heads of whatever politicians or citizens would think of supporting a vacuous proposal such as Section 1912.

Farmers should get a copy of 1912, read it, and then work the phone lines and grape vine overtime until all idea of accepting that stupid zoning proposal is put to rest forever.

Reflections on ag progress

The 1980 Ag Progress Days is history. By Friday the tents had been struck, the exhibits removed, and only a small amount of litter remained.

This year's edition of Ag Progress Days was probably the smoothest running yet, thanks to the experience gained by Show Manager Joseph Harrington and the rest of the Penn State crew.

During the show some innovative ideas were proposed, some rough spots turned up, but for the most part it was one of the finest hours in Penn State agriculture's 125 years.

Will there be livestock at Ag Progress Days in future years? The State Holstein Association thinks it could draw 600 top-flight animals for a state Holstein Show. The timing would be perfect with the All-American coming a month later.

Other livestock shows could follow. But there are two problems: first, local fair dates coming after Ag Progress could interfere; and second, Rock Springs, being a crop research farm, has no livestock facility.

The potential damage such a move could do to Farm Show may bring resistance from that area, too. Better weather, fewer gawkers and non-farm kids, and a central location at Rock Springs could hurt the Harrisburg show.

Some corn hybrid salesmen were disappointed with the way crops looked. But most farmers realized the problem was weather, not seed genetics.

Machinery dealers still want bigger and better areas for demonstrations. It's difficult to wrap a big bale of hay on a short windrow.

Crowd control at the demonstrations was excellent, with both roped-off areas and police keeping people out of danger.

One measure of how far the show has come is the general availability of water, toilet facilities, phones and electricity. That, of course, stems from having the show permanently at Rock Springs.

With 252 exhibitors and a fine show this year, the 1981 Ag Progress Days will have some big shoes to fill.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SCRIBE WHO WAS A BUILDER

Lesson for August 24, 1980

Background Scripture:
Ezra 7 through 10.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 133.

I have often noticed that many people identify themselves to others by means of their vocation. Sometimes in working with discussion groups, I like to begin by asking each person who he or she is. Of course, they always respond with their name, but many people go on to say, "I'm a carpenter," "I'm a housewife," or "I work for the insurance company."

There is nothing necessarily wrong in identifying ourselves in this manner, so long as our vocation does not presume to sum up all or even most of what we are. You are a salesperson, but there is much more to say about you beyond that. Too often our vocational image tends to have the effect of locking us into a confining role that falls far short of that for which God created us.

The story of Ezra is a good illustration of how a man was much more than his chosen vocation. When he is introduced to the narrative in the book that bears his name, he is described in these simple terms: "He was a scribe skilled in the law of Moses..." (7:6). So he was a scribe, nothing exceptional about that for there must have been many scribes. Yet, the King of Persia, Artaxxerxes, apparently saw that Ezra was something more than just a scribe for when he came to the king asking for permission to return to his homeland to rebuild the temple, "the king granted him all he asked, for the hand of the Lord was upon him" (7:6).

Yet, even as Ezra returned to Jerusalem, he still thought of himself as a scribe and little more. "For Ezra had set his heart to study the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach his statutes and ordinances in Israel" (7:10). Perhaps that is the key to what happened to Ezra: he not only was determined to study the law, but he was equally determined "to do it" — and when a person is determined to go beyond studying about God's will and attempts to do it, there is no way his or her life can be contained in a nice, neat little package.

Appoint Magistrates and Judges

So Ezra set off for Jerusalem a scribe, but in years to come people would remember him as prophet, priest, teacher, administrator, governor and, in the broad sense of the word, a builder! Because of this man and his many talents, the Temple of Jerusalem was raised up once again from the ashes of Babylonian destruction. But Ezra built more than a Temple, he built a renewed community of God's people. The foundation he laid was more than mortar and stone, but faith, courage, leadership and wisdom. He was much more than just a scribe, he was a servant of the Lord.

Lurking in the shadows of his scribal vocation and image there lurked a builder, waiting to be freed to serve God in whatever manner the Lord might direct. So look within yourself to see what may be waiting there to be set free and thus serve your Lord.

TO CONSIDER COVER CROPS

Late summer and early fall are the best times to make a cover crop seeding. Land that has produced a current crop and is not to be seeded to winter grain should be covered with some vegetation during the winter months. Any type of small grain, domestic ryegrass, or field bromegrass are common cover crops. The big reason for making this seeding is to conserve the topsoil during the winter months.

Many fields that are open may suffer severe erosion from both rain and wind. When the ground is covered with a cover crop, there will be much less soil losses. These cover crops may be pastured during the late fall and early spring and then used to improve soil organic matter next year. Don't let the topsoil get away when a cover crop will keep it on yor farm.

TO RECOGNIZE CORN SILAGE MATURITY

Some silage growers may be thinking of making their corn crop into silage early this fall due to the dry weather. I realize there are crops that are drying up from the ground and are quite short in the stalk. However, I'd like to point out that more feed nutrients will be harvested, if the ear can be allowed to mature into the early dent stage. Silage research reveals that corn made into silage in the silk stage will yield only 63% feed nutrients, while corn in the dent stage should give silage with 69% feed nutrients.

The important thing is to allow the ear to develop properly before ensiling, if at all possible. In some years when we have ample moisture the stalk may continue to be too green even when the ear is in the dent stage. Corn silage is a very

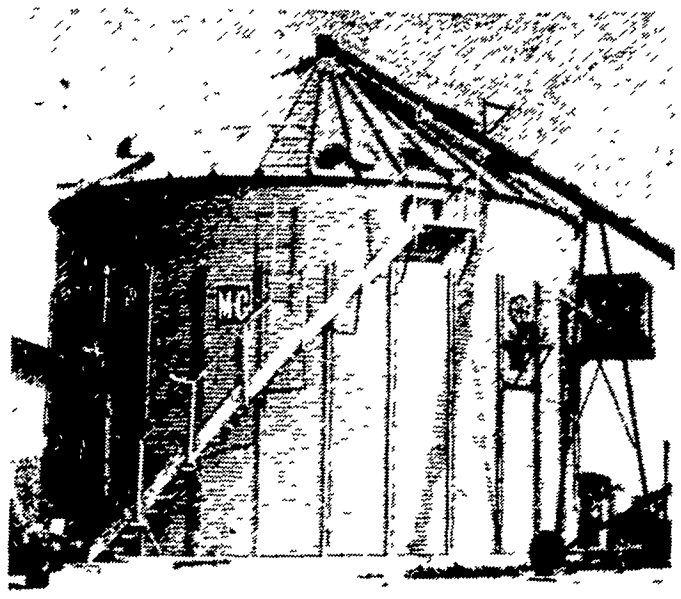
GREAT GRAIN HANDLING SYSTEMS BEGIN WITH GOOD PLANNING AND M-C DRYERS

Now Available!

M-C DRYBINE™



The ENERGY SAVING IN-BIN DRYING SYSTEM

The new Mathews Continuous In-Bin Dryer is a combination storage drying and cooling bin designed to save you money It is efficient, fast, easy to manage and costs less to operate The drying process is fast, while the cooling process is slow, eliminating stress cracks and damage caused by fast cooling There is nothing else like it on the market The Mathews design requires no wet holding bin or separate bin for cooling

- Saves energy for profitable operations
- Proven high capacity results (357 bushels per hour)
- Eliminates the most common problems found in other in-bin dryers
- Low per bushel costs

Patents Pending

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS...

As wet grain enters the top of the bin, it flows into the upper drying chamber as harvested, with no need for a wet holding bin This upper chamber holds up to 4 feet of wet grain (2250 bushels)

Every seven minutes, a continuous flow auger makes a complete revolution around the upper drying floor, drawing the dried grain into the lower cooling area

Hot air is introduced under the upper floor to dry the wet grain and to heat the surface of the grain that is distributed into the lower cooling chamber The air that is used for cooling the grain picks up heat during the cooling process This heated air is then used again in the drying process, saving on fuel costs

When not being used for drying, the bin will store 8500 bushels of grain

Brief answers to short questions

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Hens lay what they eat?

Everyone has heard at one time or another about the cow that was fed chocolate bars to give chocolate milk. But what about chickens?

I received a question from Howard Longhead of West Chester that askes that question:

Thirty years ago my wife's mother got 100 Rhode Island Red peeps every Spring. She culled the full-size ones each Fall, keeping the ones that supposedly could lay, and eating or selling the roosters and non-producers. She sold the eggs to buy her chicken feed.

"Along with the chickens, she raised a small garden for the family's use. One time something made all the onions go bad — they went over the garden fence and through the chickens. In about a week, the eggs had a decidedly rank taste and could not be sold.

Just recently, the eggs that my wife and I now buy from markets in Lancaster and Chester County have a "scorched" taste when we soft boil them. It finally dawned on me that this is probably due to over-roasting or burning the grain used for feed.

I called the County Agent and explained this to him, but he just laughed and said no one else complains.

What would cause this off-flavor in the eggs?

Mr Longhead, this is a new sort of question because I have never heard of chickens eggs picking up the flavor of their feed. Admittedly, I am more familiar with what happens to a dairy cow's milk once she dines on garlic growing in the pasture.

To help me out in finding the answer to your question, I recruited the assistance of Pennfield Corporation's nutritionist Dr. John Fiddler.

Quickly running your question by him via the telephone, he digested all the input and said, "The possibilities of scorched feed creating a similar taste in the egg are slim."

The flavor, he said would not happen in the egg as a result of feed going through the bird. "It might be possible for the egg to pick up a flavor if there is scorched material in the feeder and the egg is exposed to the odor — but here again, the egg is only there a short time."

When he pondered the possibility of the onions having created a rank taste in the eggs those many years ago, his reaction was one of not knowing. "We've never fed onions or added them to the chicken feed, so I really wouldn't know," he said.

Why the flavor shows up in milk, he explained, is because the onions and garlic produce a volatile organic acid which can be transferred into the milk production in the case of the dairy cow.

One recommendation Dr. Fiddler shared was to be sure there are no food odors in the refrigerator that might be creating this flavor. "Processed and stored eggs will pick up odors from the refrigerator," he said.

So, Mr. Longhead, although it hasn't been decisively ruled out that over-roasted feed can create a scorched taste in eggs, Pennfield's nutritionist says the chances are "remote".

It's a long food chain from the chicken to the table with any number of places where the eggs might be exposed to odors. Let's hope that the problem of "scorched" eggs doesn't persist.

Chase'em or corral'em?

By now, I'm beginning to feel that Roland Kamoda of Monongahaela and I are long-time friends. He is a loyal supporter of my column, and sends me different and unusual questions every few weeks.

His question this week concerns something that anyone who has ever had the frustrations of trying to round up cattle that just don't want to cooperate has experienced.

Maybe in a future issue you could mention about information on types of holding pens and loading chutes. It seems I do a lot of cowboying and I should remember the saying a physics teacher told me: "If you can't get ahead — use the one you have."

Rather than try to get into the many different types of corrals and chutes that are available depending on your barn and pasture system, I'm going to refer you to an excellent publication put out by Penn State called Beef Cow Management (File Number: IVD1 10M478 U.Ed. 8-599)

I was first introduced to this reference after a cow-calf seminar held at Penn State this past Winter on the three coldest, snowiest days. It is filled from cover to cover with information on feeding and nutrition, feed production, herd health, finishing for slaughter, herd management, and buildings and equipment.

They have measured drawings of cattle corrals and diagram the optimum layout for crowding cattle.

See your County agent for information on how to get a copy of this handbook, or contact Lester A. Burdette at Penn State.

For the small fee it costs to get a copy of this publication, you can't afford not to have one.

Have a problem or a question that needs answering? Send it in to Sheila's Shorts and I'll see what I can do to help.

Chester goat owners hold judging clinic

KNAUERTON — Chester dairy goat enthusiasts assembled here at Peg Jacob's farm last Tuesday evening for a dairy goat judging clinic.

Approximately 25 people pitted their minds against that of Daniel Weinstock, the judge for the evening.

Two classes of goats, one Toggenburg, the other LaMancha, provided the bodies as young and not so young placed the animals and gave oral reasons for their placings.

Roy Malick, Chester County Dairy agent, said this was the third in a series of judging clinics the goat enthusiasts have conducted this year. Initially, he said, they were aimed at 4-H youth, but parents came in greater number than the children, so it's been aimed at both groups recently. Malick said he expects to have another clinic this year.

The goat owners many of whom had never previously done any dairy judging, listened as Weinstock explained what they should be looking for and the scoring system used in the official dairy goat score cards. The evening session was just one in a series of meetings Malick has set up to aid Chester goat owners.

Other meetings are planned for people in the county including those interested in backyard homestead goats and commercial producers. Any Chester County residents are invited to attend the meetings. For more information, call Malick at the Chester Extension office, 215/696-3500.

King tops York Black and White Show

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Peter King's perennially favorite 4-H cow earned him several more awards for his impressive collection when she took senior and grand champion honors at the York Black and White Show last Friday.

Montvalley Happy Maple, a five-year-old that King has shown for several years in both 4-H and open competition, won her aged cow class and best udder designation among the aged category. A Citation R Maple daughter, she was bred by Arthur Morrison.

It was a satisfying day all around for Pete's family, the Paul Kings of Kingway Holsteins at Delta, who also won the coveted premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners. In addition, Paul took a first in the three-year-old class with a homebred daughter from both a homebred sire and dam, and daughter Lesley's 4-H Marvex heifer topped the senior yearling class.

All the King's include wife Kathy and son David are active in registered Holstein circles, and Paul serves on the state board's executive committee. Kingway's herd includes fifty registered milking animals, with a current DHIA rolling herd average of 16,700 pounds of milk and 660 of fat, with a classification BAA of 106.

York Fairgrounds hosted the annual competition sponsored by the county's Holstein Association. Creedin Cornman, well-known Cumberland County breeder of Justa-Beauty Holsteins, was the judge for the hundred-plus show entries.

Well-known Holstein enthusiasts, the Paul King family of Delta, won the premier breeder and exhibitor banners at the York Black and White Show. David and Lesley King hold the family's awards. Back from left are judge Creedin Cornman of Cumberland County, Paul King and show chairman Larry Rinehart. Absent were Mrs. Kathy King and son Peter, who were loading up the cattle to hurry off to another show the following day.

Peter King captured the senior and grand champion ribbons and trophy at the York Black and White Show with his aged cow by Citation R Maple. Sue Beshore exhibited the Beshore Farm's reserve champion 4-year-old by Gay Ideal. Alternate dairy princess Angie Eyster presented the awards.

Beshore Farms of New Cumberland exhibited the reserve senior and grand champion, "Chamberland-Dall Horty." The deep-bodied four-year-old took first place udder in her class and is a daughter of Romandale Dividend Performer. She was bred by Clifford Chamberland.

Junior champion was "Gerrilynn Chief Reflect AVA", a leggy junior yearling owned by 4-H'er Kevin Laughman of Thomasville. Sired by Vincent View Molly Chief, the heifer was bred by Christine Wolf.

Bridgette Boyer's junior calf, "Sunnybend Fresca Valiant Kit B," got judge Cornman's nod for the reserve junior rosette. A growthy and sharp January calf by S-W-D Valiant, she was bred by Thomas Boyer.

Chairman for the show was Larry Rinehart of East Berlin, and Shirley Trimmer, East Berlin, was in charge of catalogs and entries. Others on the show committee were Mike Stewart of Airville and Phil Laughman of Thomasville.

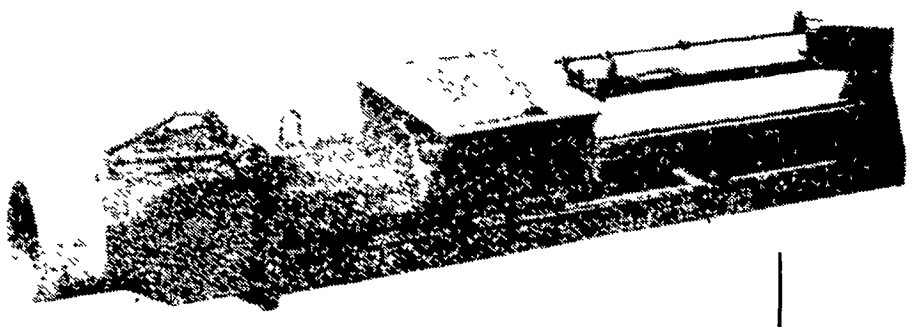
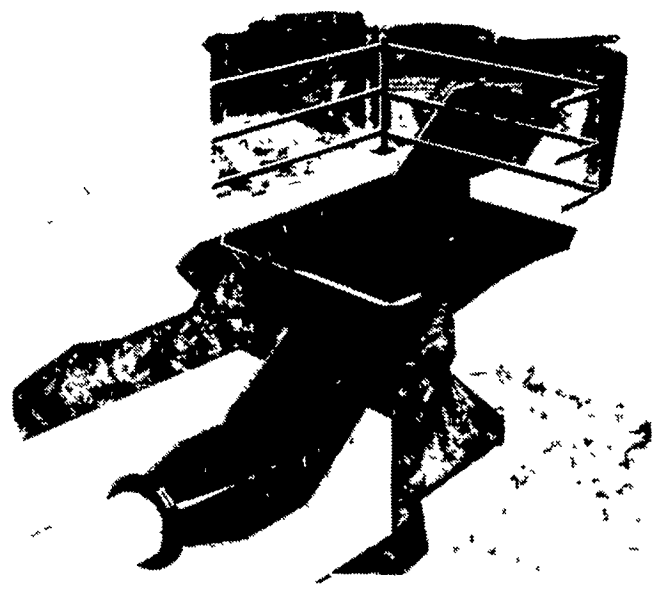
AGWAY MANURE SYSTEMS!

WHO ELSE CAN OFFER YOU 3 WAYS TO $AVE YOUR HOMEGROWN N-P-K!!





PEDLAR HYDRA-RAM

The Agway Manure Management System is designed to get the maximum benefit from manure produced on your farm The heart of the system is the Pedlar Hydra Ram Hydra-Ram is powered by a 5 hp variable volume pump which is the only pump capable of delivering up to 15 tons of thrust when extreme conditions require Hydra-Ram moves manure from the barn through a frost-free underground pipe to outside storage as far away as 250 feet The need to spread daily is eliminated — you can store the manure until your crops need it

There are three basic storage alternatives recommended with the Agway System The covered storage provides the advantage of keeping external water out of the manure This preserves more of the nutrient values present

The timber column flat wall and earthen berm storages offer economy and can also be covered with a roof at a later date

PEDLAR INCLINED HP* RAM

While Pedlar's horizontal solid piston systems have built into them extra strength and pushing capability, the majority of farm operations have average conditions — liquid and semi liquid manure with a transfer distance to storage not exceeding 125 feet — which can be serviced by the Pedlar Inclined Hollow Piston Ram

The Pedlar Hollow Piston Ram is reasonably priced simple in design with few parts or components and is economical to install as it does not require the expense of the construction of a pit The result is an economical transfer system that saves time and labour and provides all of the accepted benefits of hydraulically powered systems with manure storage that is fed from below and not above encouraged a satisfactory first cutting, but little has grown since then. One farmer said his crop was ready for cutting, but the plants were too short to go through the knives of the haybine.

Chromalloy Liquid MANURE BANK

Lehigh Valley drought

Timothy Merwarth of Upstream Farm in Easton expects almost nothing from his third cutting, but plans to remove the crop and hope for better weather.

Merwarth said his corn crop was mixed, with some as short as four feet. His sweet corn experienced poor pollination and the second planting of silver queen had no ears on it at all.

A meeting was scheduled with Lehigh County ASCS and Farmers Home Administration to discuss possible FmHA emergency loan participation.

In Northampton County, Mrs. Noyales said a meeting had been set for next week to review the emergency livestock feed program which grants up to 50 percent cost sharing. That program does not include alfalfa, and she said that fact would probably be discussed.

Charles Forney, Northampton County Extension agent, cautioned that farmers should be aware of possible nitrate poisoning should drought conditions persist. But there is hope.

A National Weather Service spokesman said the 30 day forecast for the area calls for more than normal rainfall from the period August 15 to September 15.

Pasto Ag Museum dedicated

A plaque commemorating the Jerome K. Pasto Agricultural Museum was unveiled by Penn State President John W. Oswalt and Pasto's wife Frankie. Although he joked about "a tool shed full of useless equipment," Pasto got in a plug asking for further donations to the museum located at the Ag Progress Days site.

Jerome Pasto, who retired July 1 after 30 year's service at Penn State, poses with one of the antique farm equipment exhibits in the museum named in his honor. It's a DeLaval Cream Separator made between 1877 and 1916. Flowers are a more recent option.

Jerome Pasto's wife Frankie, moved to tears by emotion, burried her head in Ag College Dean James Beattie's chest while the crowd of onlookers applauded her husband. Looking on is Alumni Association President Henry Nixon.

Bare, Wolfskill farms host Forage Seminar

GRANTVILLE — Fifteen County Extension Agents from eight states converged on the Lebanon and Lancaster County farms of Hershey Bare and Mark Wolfskill on Tuesday.

These men, from as far away as Maine, were taking part in the 1980 Forage Seminar, sponsored by International Harvestor and the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Boasting the fact that this was the first venture into this type of seminar by an equipment company, Jim Woodard, manager of Agri-Communications for the company's East-Central states explained how the participants were selected.

The candidates had to have a minimum of 5 years experience in Extension and had to have 5 or more years remaining before retirement. Each candidate submitted a written report on their county's forage situation. These reports were due on May 15, and the fifteen participants were notified of their selection about a month ago.

The purpose of the seminar, according to IH, was to stimulate the development of new ideas for producing and managing a forage program. Of course, becoming more familiar with forage related equipment, forage research, and on-farm application was not overlooked.

Meeting here for the first time Monday evening, the group heard about their next two-day itinerary from David S. Williams, manager of the North-East Agricultural Equipment Region for IH.

On Tuesday, the County Agents took to the field, but didn't actually get too far out into any.

Their first stop on the tour was the Hershey Bare farm, Lebanon. Bare spent some time with the group discussing his personal farm management program and then opened his barn doors for the group to witness first hand one of the county's top dairy farms.

Bare, who was introduced as the top-yielding alfalfa grower in the county in 1978 and one of the top five in the grassland contest last year, showed the group his new sealed concrete silo for haylage.

Some advice that Bare shared with the visiting agents was: "the fewer times a farmer runs over the alfalfa fields, the better it is for the forage"; "watch when sowing with a disc — if it's set too deep the seeds won't come up"; and "don't reseed back into alfalfa any sooner than 2 years because of diseases".

Travelling east again, the visiting agents met at the farm of Mark Wolfskill, near Robesonia. Wolfskill, too, shared some of his own experiences in the farming profession with the men.

"My Dad always believed in the fertilizer bag," he said, pointing out the importance of keeping the phosphorus levels high enough for the forage to grow well. Wolfskill told the group he applies a ton of lime to his sod fields "no matter what the pH test comes back."

Wolfskill told the group he is somewhat conservative and farms the way he wants to — not the way someone tells him he should. This was in response to questions on why he only bales his hay and doesn't feed high-moisture corn.

The group looked over the Berks County farmer's steer feeding operation, his alfalfa fields and other crops farmed with conservation in mind, and his dairy set-up and new loafing barn.

After a hearty lunch, the group continued on their fast schedule to the business of Swope and Bashore, Inc. located in Frystown, one of IH's XL dealerships.

There the agents saw first hand some of the latest in forage equipment. They also were provided with information on a computer planning tool, Pro-Ag, available through IH. This computer planner allows farmers to analyze their

With hands on hips, Mark Wolfskill, left, discusses his farm management program that he admits is a bit conservative — he has been a Berks County District Director for the Conservation District for many years.

You get better feed conversion and lower cost of gain with corn-soy and Vigortone.

If you're feeding hogs from birth-to-market, corn-soy and Vigortone will make you more money. Your figures will prove it.

Start out with more uniform litters at less cost with Vigortone's Sow Prep No. 4A. When feeding less than four lbs. of feed, use Sow Prep No. 54. You'll have big savings over self-feeding programs.

Then, save 50% on your pre-starter rations with Vigortone's Creep Wean No. 3. This highly potent pre-mix contains vitamins, minerals and amino acids that assure fast growth right through weaning. Your baby pigs will really go for this highly palatable pre-starter because you grind and mix it yourself — fresh,

Add your choice of antibiotic to your pre-starter, or use Creep Wean No. 3C with Mecadox.* It controls swine dysentery and bacterial swine enteritis.

At 45 pounds, put your pigs on Vigortone 16% starter ration. Your cost of gain will be lower, because you again prepare it yourself using homegrown feedstuffs and Vigortone.

Keep your pigs on corn-soy and Vigortone right on through growing and finishing. Your hogs are assured the essential balance and levels of amino acids, major minerals, trace minerals, and vitamins.

Make more money this year by lowering your feed costs from birth-to-market. Feed Vigortone fortified corn-soy rations.

Now is the time to compare

See your Vigortone dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's low-cost swine feeding programs with any other you name.

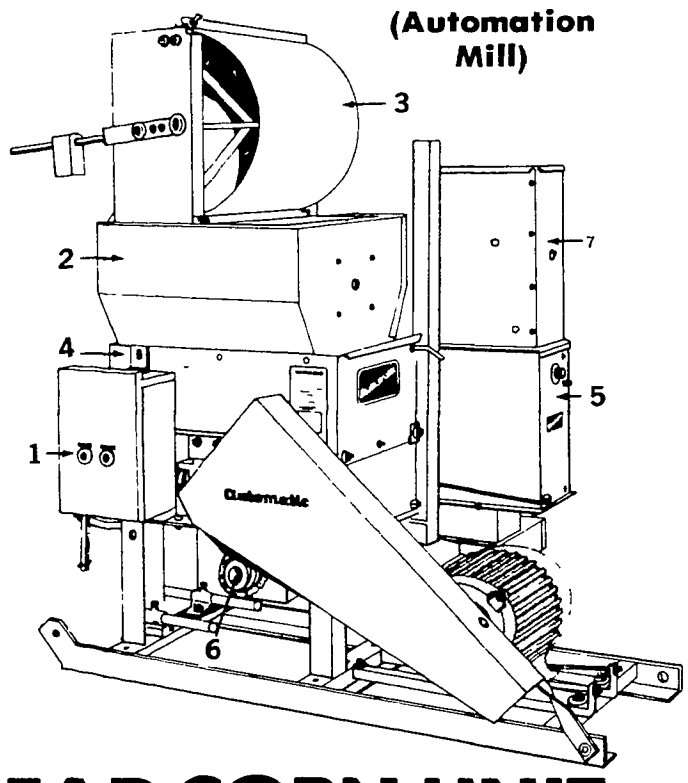
ELECTRIC FEED PROCESSOR



Process and blend 3 or more Ingredients at one time!

(1) Control center (Type III timer system) predetermines and records amount of feed grain (2) Bin Switch regulates input auger, automatically controls grain level in hopper, (not visible); (3) Automatic scale meters preset amount of grain through roller mill, operates automatically and continuously without power, (4) Automatic Roller mill with fast-roll attachment rolls grain, (5) Dial-controlled variable speed augers in electronic meter let you add protein, mineral or medication into mixing auger; (6) Mixing auger mixes and delivers processed feed to take-away auger. Supply auger and mill processed preset amount of grain; (7) Accessory hopper with flow switch.

Note: The Automatic Dump Scale and feed metering units may be gravity fed from overhead bins or hoppers. Flow-control switches are required if input augers are used in place of gravity flow.

EAR CORN UNIT

Automatic's ear corn unit handles wet, shucky and even frozen ear corn. The crusher unit shreds the cob followed by rollers that crack the corn, producing a flaky, dust-free feed for greater digestibility. The hydraulically driven intake auger swings to the rear for transport and may be operated at any angle from rear to side.

Dust-free rolled grain is more palatable, easier to digest, eliminates wheezing and many digestive disorders.

valuable feed on most livestock farms. Every effort should be made to harvest maximum feed nutrients.

TO KEEP STAND-BY GENERATORS IN ORDER

The value of stand-by generators was widely experienced this past summer Many farm operations were out of electric current for periods needing the use of this equipment. The important thing now is to be sure that you have one of these machines and that it is in good working condition. We never know when we will have additional storms (rain, snow, or ice) that will take away our regular source of power Highly mechanized farmers are urged to test their generators and be sure they are in top condition. If the generator is old, or not in good condition, it might be in order to invest in another one. Some losses have been very high due to the lack of electricity for a short period of time Losses from many frozen food lockers and refrigerators were experienced from storms during this summer Planning for emergency action when electric power is gone, is very much in order.

TO MANAGE NEW CATTLE

Many cattle feeders will be on the market in the next few months to buy feeders for their winter feeding program. This will not be easy because it appears that feeder prices will follow the higher trends in the fat cattle market. However, feeders should make every effort to buy fresh cattle and avoid putting several strings of cattle together from different places. This is especially true with light calves

Keep stress to a minimum and allow several days for rest after they arrive Good quality legume hay is suggested for the first few days, rather than grass hay, according to recent research. A light feeding of a 15% grain ration after the first day will provide needed energy to keep them healthy The "eye of the master" is very important the first few weeks to detect sick cattle that should be segregated and treated at once The investment will be high; the management needs to be excellent.

ATTENTION FARMERS! ADVANCED AG SYSTEMS INTRODUCES CIRCLE STEEL BUILDINGS

DO YOU REALLY NEED A STORAGE BUILDING THIS GOOD?

If you could afford a new building every 10 years, a Circle Steel building wouldn't be necessary. But most farmers make an investment in a building that will last longer than 10 years...many are investing in Circle Steel to get that longer life with less yearly maintenance.

If you want long-term return on your building investment, make it a Circle Steel...from "Harvestall Chillcuring works.

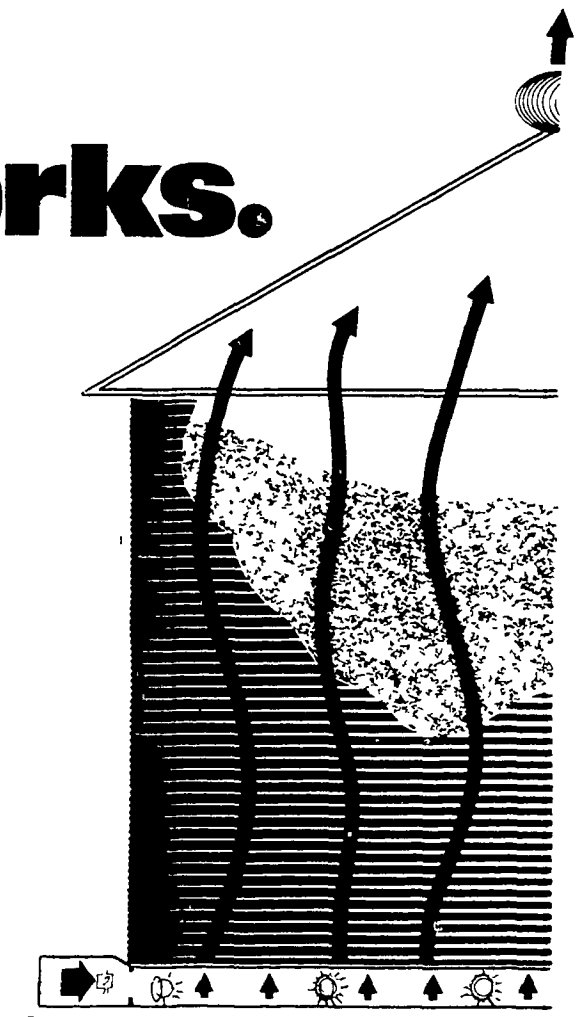
I get better quality corn for less cost."



Clarence Harnish, Lampeter, Pa.

This was my first year with the Harvestall When my corn was dried commercially last year it cost me 27¢ per bushel With the Harvestall it didn t cost over 6' ¢ per bushel and the test weight was 58 to 59 lbs

I m pleased with the quality corn I get and I m pleased with the savings I would recommend the Harvestall system to farmers who are looking for storage or drying because it has done for me the job it was designed to do

CALL NOW TO GET THIS YEAR'S CROP IN A HARVESTALL.

The Harvestall Chillcuring System

It's simple When grain comes out of the field it's a living seed So instead of destroying the seed with high heat, moisture is removed with natural air ventilation. The grain keeps all its feed value; there is less shrinkage than with heat drying because only moisture is removed, not dry matter You'll never see white dust in Chillcured corn You actually save half of what you're used to losing in heat shrink

There's no gas or oil to buy Natural air carries away heat and moisture as the corn releases it

Harvestall Chillcuring is a back-to-basics system that just simply makes good sense Find out more about it

Pinesedge Melody, a nine year old aged cow walked away with Grand Champion Honors at the Milking Shorthorn Show, held here at the Kutztown Fair last Wednesday. Owned by Nedra Yoder, Shoemakersville, this spectacular cow earned a long impressive record of accomplishments.

Producing a record of 13,500 pounds milk, this cow has taken Champion honors in almost every show entered. In 1978 she was named first placed aged cow at the National Milking Shorthorn Show, Harrisburg and will be entered there again this year.

She and a seven year old daughter, Pinesedge Melody II, were undefeated dam and daughter in 1977 and 1978 as well. A Senior Yearling granddaughter, Pinesedge 8th Note, also owned by Nedra was named Junior Champion of this Show.

Nedra is a registered nurse at the Reading Hospital and Medical Center but also helps on the home farm, Pinesedge Farm, during off hours. She has six cows and two bulls of her own, all out of her Grand Champion.

State mushroom output drops for second year

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania, the leading state in mushroom production harvested 213.7 million pounds of mushrooms during the 1979-80 season, down less than one percent from a year earlier.

This is only the second drop in Pennsylvania's production since estimates began in 1967, and the second consecutive year of decline, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Pennsylvania fresh market sales totaled 70.0 million pounds, up 14 percent, while processed sales in the commonwealth declined by six percent to 143.7 million pounds. The sales value of fresh market mushrooms in Pennsylvania for the 1979-1980 season was $59.4 million compared to $54.6 million during the 1978-1979 season.

The sales value of processed mushrooms was $82.2 million compared to $98.3 million a year ago.

Pennsylvania put 73.0 million square feet into production during the 1979-1980 crop year, an increase of less than one percent compared to 72.7 million square feet a year ago.

Intentions for 1980-1981 crop year are 69.0 million square feet, a decrease of six percent from this crop year. Pennsylvania continues to dominate production with 45 percent of nation's total. During the 1978-1979 crop year, Pennsylvania produced 47 percent of the nation's total.

Mushroom production in the United States reached a record 470 million pounds, four percent above a year earlier and 18 percent more than the 1977-1978 crop. The value of sales in the United States for fresh market totaled $245,116,000, compared to last year's $217,770,000.

Processed mushroom sales were valued at $123,431,000, compared to $144,030,000 for the 1978-1979 crop.

An estimated 151 million square feet of bed and tray area was used in the production of mushrooms in the U.S. during the year, up three percent from the previous season.

Haylage, accident bring friends together at Risser farm

NEAR LAWN — In our generally apathetic society, it is reassuring to find farmers and people who care about their fellow man.

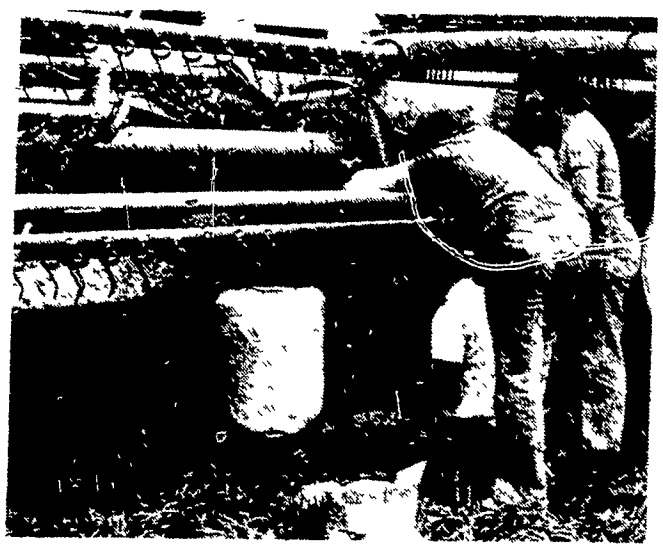
One example of practicing concern for neighbors was demonstrated by friends of John Risser, R1 Hershey, on Thursday.

Tractors and forage wagons of all makes and sizes rolled into the farm lane early in the morning to help the Lebanon County dairy farmer cut 50 acres of alfalfa for haylage.

Risser, who had been involved in a motorcycle accident last Monday while riding on Route 81, was limping from wagon to silo. His accident had put him in the hospital for a week, and when he finally could get back to the farm, both his foot and arm were sporting casts. But the plaster didn't keep him from being involved.

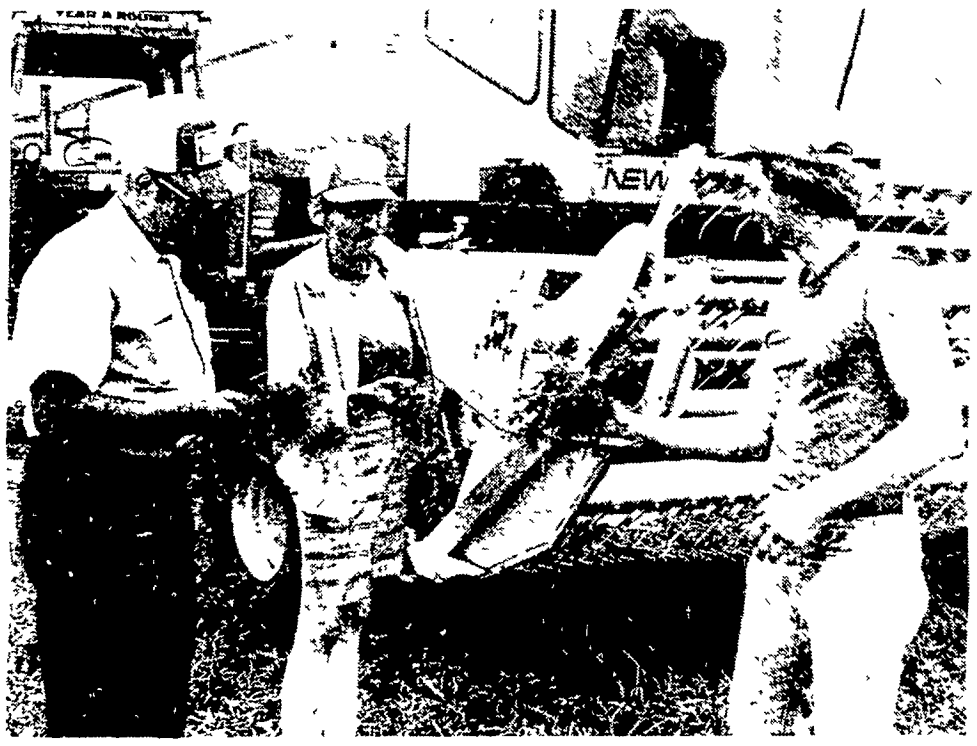
Progress on filling the silo was hampered when Risser's silo decided to act up and the pulley on the unloader broke, creating a bottleneck of wagons waiting to unload.

Undaunted, Risser said to line the wagons up — the haylage could be blown off anytime as long as they didn't run out of wagons. Neighbors scratched their heads and suddenly remembered a spare wagon they had left at home.



"Who's doing this anyway?" Deb Strickland and Amy Enders seem to be full of advice for Harold Fry and Gerald Whisler while they get the forage harvester ready.

As one wagon load is being filled, another is on the way to the haylage silo as friends and neighbors pitched in to help dairyman John Risser who is recuperating from a motorcycle accident.



Checking out the alfalfa are Bob Gantz, left; John Risser, center; and Daryl Alger. Close to 15 farmers within a 12 mile radius turned out to help Risser on Thursday Folks within a 12 mile radius turned out to help. William Capp and his son, Bill, from R1 Hershey came, along with Paul Kreider, Daryl Alger, Deb Strickland, Amy Enders and Stanley Long. From Manheim, the good-neighbor hand was extended by Jim Noll and Roy Ginder.

Bob Gantz, of L.H. Brubaker, Inc., rolled in with a New Holland forage wagon to be put to work. While Harold and Herb Fry, poultrymen from Marietta, helped get the forage equipment ready to go.

Donald Hoffer, a dairy farmer near Annville, joined the team in the afternoon.

Ken Risser, nephew to John was busy assisting with the haylage preparations. He, along with his friend Karl Grosenickel, have been taking care of all the milking since Risser's accident.

Said Risser, "I just want everyone to know how much I appreciate their help. Hopefully, by the time the corn is ready for the silo, all I'll be wearing is this cast on my arm — I can drive the tractor with that."—SM

Fertilizer practices eyed in Rohrer tour

EAST PETERSBURG — A feature of the P.L. Rohrer & Bro., Inc. Crop Tour, attended by some 200 area farmers, was detailed information and demonstration of various fertilizer practices.

An outstanding corn variety plot was displayed on the Charles Hummer Farm, R7 Manheim that had 600 lbs. of Unipel 21-7-14 broadcasted this Spring and 150 lbs. of Unipel 13-34-10 used in the row at planting time. The benefits of this program was discussed by Chevron Chemical Agronomist, Rick Creamer. The corn displayed a dark green color and showed all of the desirable characteristics of corn growing with an abundance of plant nutrients.

The second tour stop that pertained to fertility practices was a pasture demonstration conducted on the Eugene K. Metzler farm, R7 Manheim. This plot consisted of various forms and rates of fertilizer materials applied on a grass pasture. The fertilizer materials applied were Unipel 21-7-14, Ammonium Nitrate, and Urea. The Unipel 21-7-14 plots showed the greatest response and it was very evident that the grass responded to the phosphorus and potassium materials as well as the nitrogen. The straight nitrogen materials, Ammonium Nitrate and Urea, gave little response.

The most economical rate of fertilizer application was demonstrated to be 500 lbs. per acre of Unipel 21-7-14. This rate of application has been supported to be the most economical by pasture fertility research work conducted by Chevron Chemical Co. in past years. Those attending the tour were encouraged to apply the Unipel 21-7-14 on pasture now to provide fall pasture as well as early spring pasture.

The third tour stop pertaining to fertility practices included a spreading demonstration that compared Unipel 21-7-14 fertilizer with a blended 21-7-14 fertilizer. The demonstration consisted of spreading these two types of materials at the rate of 700 lb. per acre, and collecting the material in boxes spaced across the spreading pattern. The material collected from each box was put into test tubes to give a visual comparison and the rate per acre was determined. The Unipel 21-7-14 material was spread more evenly across the spread pattern and the rate per acre, as well as the nutrient distribution was very accurate.

Other fertility practices discussed during the tour was applied Unipel 21-7-14, Unipel 10-10-30 or Unipel 10-20-20 this fall for the 1981 corn crop. The benefits of applying Unipel 21-7-14 on wheat this fall with a top dressing application next spring was discussed, as well as applying Unipel 10-10-30 or Unipel 10-20-20 for the 1981 soybean crop, either this fall or next spring.

Much interest was shown in the fertilizer segment of the tour, and it was evident that the practices demonstrated would be of tremendous help in planning the 1981 Crop Fertility Program.

Representatives of the following agricultural companies participated in the Crop Tour program:

Migro Seed Corn, Chevron Chemical - Ortho, Stauffer Chemical, Ciba-Geigy, American Cyanamid, FMC Corp. and Union Carbide.

silage show and 125 in the hay show, the state contest was 30 percent larger than last year.

The Jerome K. Pasto Agricultural Museum was dedicated in honor of the former associate dean of agriculture who retired July 1, 1980.

The museum houses a wide-ranging collection of antique farm equipment.

Numerous dignitaries were on hand for the show. Among them was Pennsylvania's first lady Ginny Thornburgh who toured the show with Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell, Penn State Ag College Dean James Beattie, and Penn State University President John W. Oswald.

Mrs. Thornburgh, speaking for her husband, praised Hallowell in a speech she made at the Theatre Tent, saying she and the Governor had learned to appreciate Pennsylvania Agriculture through the eyes of the 12th generation dairyman.

She concluded her talk by thanking the state's farmers "for caring about this great state."

Also on hand were Arlen Specter, republican candidate, and Pete Flaherty, democratic candidate, for the U.S. Senate seat from Pennsylvania.

The state's political agricultural leadership tied in a trip to Ag Progress Days with a lunch in the site's barn and committee meetings to discuss the next session's bills and activities.

The first state Vegetable Recipe Contest was concluded Wednesday afternoon with Judy Burchfield, Altoona, taking home the first prize of $100. Her recipe was cucumber hors d'oeuvres, a garlic flavored cucumber slice on bread.

Second place went to Ruth Roberts, Bensalem; third to Mrs. Geary Huntsberger, Etters; and fourth to Mrs. Myles. Strohl, Trappe.

First place in the FFA safe tractor operators contest was Gary Natali, Perkasie. 4-H winner was John Miller, R1 Seven Valleys. Both will be eligible to compete in the regional contest to be held in Richmond, Va. in September.

Several exhibitors and guests voiced the opinion that livestock, including dairy cows, steers, hogs and sheep, could be a valuable addition to the show.

William C. Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein association said he thought 600 animals would be shown at Rock Springs if the facilities were there.

Some observers said they would like to see the proposed new Agricultural Arena built at Rock Springs rather than near the Main Campus of Penn State University. This would provide the necessary facilities although it would make access difficult for the students.

Dry weather prior to the show hurt the exhibitors' corn plots and more than a few hybrid firm representatives questioned whether the plots could be moved to a more uniform field.

Short corn reflected the generally poor stands seen across much of the lower part of the state.

Some rain came early Wednesday afternoon and closed the show at about 4.15 p.m. while the other days' weather was fine.

But for three days there were no problems at Ag Progress Days for the many farmers who visited the site.

For those who like to plan ahead, next year's show will be held August 25, 26, and 27 at the same location.

Run Farm, R2 East Berlin. It brought $1025 from the Lancaster County producer.

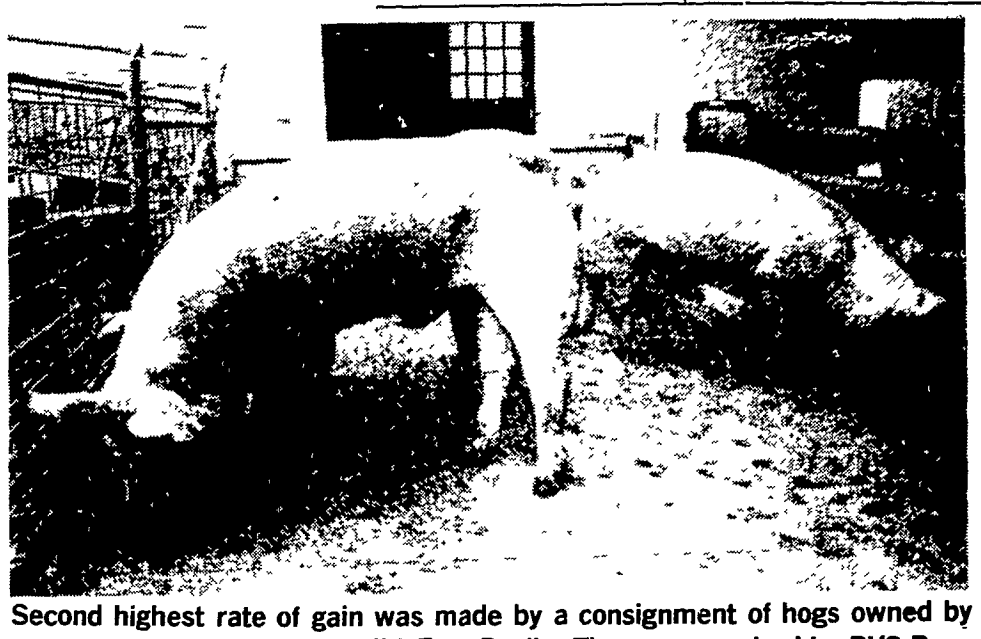
Forty-eight boars finished the test with an index of 90 or more points to qualify for the sale, along with the needed soundness and underline requirements. They averaged $537.50.

Three Chester White boars sold for an average of $333.33; twelve Duroc boars sold for an average of $508.33; two Hampshire boars sold for an average of $537.50; five Landrace boars averaged $375; two Spotted boars averaged $437.50; and the twenty-four Yorkshire boars sold for an average of $619.79.

Although no records were broken at this year's sale (the high selling Yorkshire boar in 1978 brought $1600), Robert Kimble, director at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, termed the sale "excellent". He noted the sale average was up about $200 from last year's prices.

Volume buyer at the sale was the New Jersey Department of Corrections.

The grand champion pen of hogs at Pennsylvania's third performance tested boar sale was bred by Richard D. Miller, Millers Yorkshire, R1 Spring Grove. Sire of the lot of four hogs which sold Wednesday was RTB8 Alpine 43-8.



Second highest rate of gain was made by a consignment of hogs owned by Joel R. Stern, Red Run Farm, R2 East Berlin. The pen was sired by BV8 Bona Vista Extra Size 53-2. About 80 boars were represented at the sale.

They purchased 5 Yorkshire boars.

There were 95 registered buyers from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. Fourteen boars were sold to out-of-state buyers.

Other producers participating in the boar test include: John Henkel, Willow Glen Farm, R1 Strasburg; Sweigard's Durocs, R3 Halifax; Charles E. Smith, Sr., R6 Washington; Leon Arnold, LeAnn Yorkshire Farm, R5 Lebanon; Charles and Jay Bumgardner, Blue Mt. View Farms, R3 Annville; Gerald Griffith, R2 Burgettstown; Donald L. Pequea zoning spects of the 80 pages of roposed revision, he and ie other two farmers of the ve-member planning ommission were startled by ie proposed amendment o. 1912 pertaining to gribusiness.

When the three farmers on ie commission questioned ie agricultural proposals, lyers said their questions to ie supervisors "fell on deaf ars."

Kenneth Funk, Township upervisor, disagreed. He aid the revisions were set p with the advice of the lanning commission, in-luding the three farmers.

'It'd better also be in that rticle that the Supervisors re passing the ordinance at ie recommendation of the lanning commission," unk said.

The changes the farmers roposed have been added to he most recent draft of the roposals, Funk said.

Funk added, "When you aise 500 chickens or 50 hogs ou feed them what is on the arm. But when they put up ouses for 70,000 chickens, hey are on contract and verything is trucked in. hat's not farming, that's usiness.

"If you have an operation nd you raise everything on he farm, that's farming," unk defined.

"Our intention is not to utlaw anything," Funk aid. "We want a guy who ants to build a chicken ouse to obtain a special xemption. Our purpose is to egulate," Funk said.

"Most of the farmers in he township have small wner-operated farms that equire intensive animal opulations to be profitable. f these farmers are not llowed to update, they will e forced to sell out to levelopment," Myers said.

At a recent meeting in his ome, Myers said 18 farmers surveyed the proposed No. 1912 and No. 1903 amend-ments regarding griculture. Part of the ontroversy centers on lefinitions.

The proposals define gribusiness as "business nvolved in the processing of arm products. Such usinesses include but are ot limited to poultry perations, confined ivestock operations and ushroom houses.

Pequea Township Solicitor Charles Grove said the planning commission and his office gleaned the better parts of various ordinances. He said the township does not yet have a flood plain ordinance and that it must have one by September 30 of this year. The flood plain provisions are included in the changes proposed, and are one reason he gave for making the changes now. He called the proposed revisions "substantial revisions.

These proposals are the result of studies of court cases, personal experience and improvements made to existing ordinances," he said.

Grove, who is also Solicitor for Rapho Township, said precidence for some of the provisions was taken from various meetings with farmers and resulting changes to Rapho Township zoning ordinances.

"Farmers in Rapho Township realized that certain limitations were needed on confinement operations. They wanted to bring about a situation where agriculture didn't interfere with existing development and to deter new residential development near their farms. The Rapho amendment has a fair amount of specifics geared to assuring that any person who wants to go into one of these operations would be using the most progressive methods," Grove said.

Robert Shellenberger, a Rapho Township Supervisor, said that while his Township adopted an agricultural zoning amendment about a year ago, the definitions of agribusiness were entirely different, and the poultry and livestock numbers were not similar.

The group of Pequea Township farmers who met at the Myers home recently has asked Attorney Thomas to pursue the matter for them.

Thomas said the revisions take agriculture back to the early 1900s. The idea of terming poultry operations with less than 500 birds as agribusiness is ludicrous, he said.

Thomas said the zoning changes would include establishing ag districts. He explained that previously other residential and commercial zones had been established and everything left over was considered agricultural.

"Today the trend is toward establishing ag preserves or districts. Nine other townships have special agricultural districts, Pequea does not. What has happened in Pequea Township is that developments have incorporated themselves into the leftover agricultural land.

"While the proposed zoning changes would set up ag districts, they would be comprised of all this leftover land. But what is particularly objectionable is that if you restrict the use of land making it impossible for the farmer to go about the business of farming, you might as well call it something else, because then it's not an ag district," Thomas said.

Thomas also said Items 6 and 8 give the Zoning Hearing Board carte blanche over the spreading of manure and "including but not limited to, cleaning methods and processes, vehicular traffic, and the disposition of waste.

"The farmers in the township need to be aware of what is happening, because if they are not, it'll be too late when they need a special exception," Thomas said.

Thomas said for any large poultry or hog operation the way the proposals are presently worded, a farmer would need a variance.

"It would be almost impossible to obtain," Thomas said.

Hess said the farmers are hoping to pack both the September 4 and tentatively scheduled September 24 meetings. "Bodies at both public hearings will do more than anything else," Hess said.

Hess added, "I am an eighth generation farmer here in Pequea Township, and I'd like to see my children, the ninth generation, have the opportunity to farm here also."

Estate planning book for farms available

LANCASTER — A new book on estate planning for farm families has just been published.

"Your Farm Estate," by James N. Wilson, CPA, takes the reader step-by-step through all necessary considerations for developing an estate plan that will protect hard-won assets, including, for example: economic philosophy to protect the family farm, estate-planning objectives, tools you need to plan your estate, how to avoid probate.

It also covers use of corporations and partnerships, trusts, and which ones are best for you, life insurance: when, why, and how much?, the three taxes, and how to avoid them, lifetime giving, and your will.

Unlike most estate planning texts that are written by attorneys from an abstract legal standpoint, "Your Farm Estate" is written by a certified public accountant from a practical, dollars-and-cents perspective.

Author James N. Wilson has devoted the past two decades to counseling nearly 1000 farm families on estate planning. He frequently draws on this experience, and relates many real-life anecdotes to help make a difficult subject interesting and comprehensible.

"Your Farm Estate," in hard back edition, is available by sending a check for $17.95 plus $1.50 postage and handling along with your name, address, town, state and zip code to: Creative Financial Planning, Suite 234, 8060 Knue Road, Indianapolis, IN 46250.

Harness to resign Ag post

HARRISBURG — Connie Harness, who has worked as Chief of Promotions for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, has resigned her position effective September 1.

The appointment of Harness, a former Miss Pennsylvania, was questioned in many quarters when she was made Promotions Chief for the state a year ago.

Her lack of agricultural background was among the factors cited by critics.

Now Connie Harness Martinez, she said she is resigning to join her new husband in Little Rock, Arkansas, where is is stationed as an Air Force pilot.

"While I have enjoyed developing programs to promote Pennsylvania Agriculture and have benefited from my employment with the Department, it is time for me to pursue a new challenge," she said.

She spoke of her pride in "helping to showcase agriculture in the Keystone State."

Among the projects completed while she was Chief of Promotions for the Department was the development of the 'Agri-Animals,' larger than life sized creatures representing farm products.

As of Friday the Department of Agriculture had not announced her successor.

York 4-H colored breed winners named

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Two names familiar in area Guernsey circles, Lehman and Rutter, took all the top prizes during the opening breed show at last Thursday's York 4-H dairy roundup. That annual showcase of 4-H project cattle was held at the York Fairgrounds, with judge Jason Myers of Westminster, Maryland, placing all the classes.

Fourteen-year-old Brian Lehman won the senior and grand champion Guernsey rosettes with Carsals D. Doe, a 2-year-old. Lehman is a six-year veteran of dairy exhibiting and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Lehman, R11, York. Reserve senior and grand winner was Rutter Bros. Pals Faith, Tina Rutter's five-year-old and a champion in several previous shows.

Tina, 18, also took the junior division honors with her senior yearling heifer, Rutter Bros. Pals Wendy, topping her brother Tim's reserve champion senior calf. Tim and Tina are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rutter, Lightner Road, York. All four top Guernsey breed winners are members of the White Rose Dairy Club.

Ayrshire honors were a toss-up between Scott Cooper, who exhibited the grand champion and reserve junior, and Barry Lehman, with the junior champion animal later selected the reserve grand champion. Scott is 14 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Cooper, Jr., of R2, Delta. He's a member of the Milk and Money dairy club for seven years and already owns an impressive herd of about 10 animals. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Lehman, Jr., Barry is 13 and a member for six years in the White Rose Dairy Club.

McCoy Delegate Princess, a 2-year-old Brown Swiss won the senior and grand breed honors for Mike Welsh. Mike, age 12, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Welsh, R1, East Berlin. Reserve senior and grand ribbons went to Jana Beth Fantom with her 4-year-old. Jana Beth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fantom, Delta and a member of the Milk and Money Dairy Club.

David Krone's senior yearling was named junior winner in the Swiss entries, topping the reserve junior intermediate calf owned by Wade Emig. David, 15, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Krone, R2, Glen Rock. He's a member of the Southwest Dairy Club. Sixteen-year-old Wade was exhibiting at the dairy show for the first time, and is a member of the Central Dairy Club. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Emig of R2, East Berlin.

Jerseys were the final category in the colored breeds show, with Mike Welsh repeating previous years' winnings with senior and grand champion 4-year-old Faithful Royal Sybil of SSF. Reserve senior and Brian Lehman, left, took senior and grand champion Guernsey honors during the York 4-H dairy roundup. Tina Rutter won reserve senior and grand as well as the junior champion, with the animal held by her cousin Todd. At right is Tim Rutter with his reserve junior champion.

Senior and grand champion Brown Swiss at the York roundup was won by Mike Welsh, with Jana Beth Fantom earning the reserve senior and grand spot.

Knight animal tops York 4-H Holstein show

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Kildee Elevation Hilda, a tall and dairy 3-year-old Elevation daughter, captured the senior and grand champion honors for veteran 4-H showman James Knight during the York Dairy Club roundup last Thursday at the York Fairgounds

Type judge for the annual show was former 4-H'er and registered Holstein breeder Jason Myers of Westminster, Maryland

The reserve senior and grand awards went to another long-time 4-H Holstein exhibitor, Peter King of Delta. His Citation R Maple daughter, "Montvalley Happy Maple," took first place in the aged cow class before edging out other contenders for the reserve champion spot

Champion exhibitor James Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs George Knight of Airville, whose Woodbine Holsteins are well known across the country. He's a recent graduate from the vo-ag program of Red Lion Area High School and a member of the Milk and Money Dairy Club. Also a member of the same dairy group, Peter King is a student in the vo-ag program at Red Lion He's the son of Mr. and Mrs Paul King, Kingway Farms, Delta R2

Bridgette Boyer captured the junior championship with "Sunnybend Fresco Valiant Kit B," a junior calf by S-W-D Valiant The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Boyer, Sunnybend Farms, Bridgette belongs to the Central Dairy Club.

Kevin Laughman's first place junior yearling sired by Vincent View Molly Chief was named the reserve junior champion. He also took first place with his entry in the senior calf class, a daughter of Penmar Apollo Topper. Kevin's parents are Mr and Mrs. Phillip Laughman, Thomasville R2. A member of the Central dairy club, he's a recent graduate of Spring Grove High School.

The day-long 4-H dairy exhibit wrapped up with a fitting and showing competition, judged by John Harris, Dauphin County agriculture extension agent. Contendors were selected on their performance during the type judging and then called back to the ring to compete in three age groups Fitting winner in the junior 8-11 category was Lesley King, R2, Delta, Jana Beth Fantom of Delta won the junior age showmanship trophy.

Heidi Von Lange, Stewartstown, topped all other competitors in the intermediate 12-14 age groups, taking home a trophy for both the fitting and the showmanship divisions.

BACK TO NATURE MEETING

Two Speakers - Two Subjects
PLACE: Organic Center, 217 S. Railroad Ave., New Holland, PA 17557
TIME: 7:00 p.m., Thursday, August 28, 1980
SPEAKER: Ray Nielson, president of National Ag Products Development, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Learn how to break hardpan more permanently.
Aid the downward movement of water.
Let the swamps disappear and have less waterlogged fields.
FOR: Earlier plowing or harvesting after rains.
FOR: Softer subsoil for holding moisture down deep to raise again like a wick in drought.
FOR: Softer topsoil for easier tillage, saving fuel.

Mr. Nielson, a top dairyman and businessman, has a knowledge of chemistry. He experimented with other liquid soil conditioners and is now making a much improved one for less money. Loving farmers and knowing their problems, he doesn't want to overcharge them. Don't miss his informative talk. He teaches better soil practices also. He also makes an excellent septic tank drain field opener, only $5.95, working on the same principle. Both products are guaranteed. We at the Organic Center are so sure they work that we'll take care of the guarantee. Dealers wanted for these products. They will be good sellers.

SECOND SPEAKER

Don Perkins from Natural Development Co., Bainbridge, Pa.
TIME: 8:00 p.m. - Same evening - Same place

SUBJECT: A WHOLEISTIC APPROACH TO LIVESTOCK FEEDING

It is a SOIL TO MOUTH program, simplified, improved, and economized by using natures ways. Mr. Perkins has 16 years experience with his subject. He is not a babe. His informative program will help the farmer help themselves. He is a trouble shooter and wants to train the farmers to be their own trouble shooter.

Don't miss these good lectures. They can save you very many dollars.

THERE IS OVERWHELMING PROOF THAT NATURE KNOWS BEST

IN FERTILIZING OUR HERITAGE
IN FEEDING LIVESTOCK
IN SILAGE PRESERVATIVES
YOU NAME IT. IT WORKS.

It is much better to raise a plant right in the first place with non-toxic fertilizer, than trying to doctor it up and balance it for livestock by man's knowledge which is subject to mistake. Results show sometimes computers don't work while the next dairyman does excellent on the same program. And sometimes the good results are short lived.

HEALTH starts from the soil. This is basic. Natural fertilized soil gives more balanced feed. Some nutrients exchange values. The high gives to the low. Another of the many blessings of obeying natural law.

We have a full program that also gives tremendous yields of high protein crops - ¼ or ⅓ or ½ more protein than normal. The basic fertilizer, especially where there is plenty manure is soft rock phosphate, costing only $83 per ton plus spreading. Box cars bring it direct from the mines, eliminating additional handling costs. Our BX soil bacteria is an excellent combination whith this phosphate, highly proven. They save a lot of fertilizer and produce healthy crops; more disease, drought and blight resistant. Our program is going to help the farmers survive the forthcoming unbalanced economy and trouble. But it is your choice if you want to depend on petroleum manufactured products and kill your soil life. If there would be an embargo or cut off on petroleum, what would you do?

Fall application is best.
Free literature gladly sent.

Higher prices in effect for grain call, release

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Higher release and call prices for the farmer-owned grain reserve were put into effect, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland announced last Friday.

Wheat, corn and barley reserves are in release status and will so remain at least until August 31, as previously announced.

Oat and sorghum reserves have been called, and the actions by the U.S. Department of Agriculture do not change this. Instead, Bergland said, new reserves for oats and sorghum which have not previously been in the reserve become available to producers today with the higher release and call prices.

"Implementing the higher reserve price levels principally affects corn and sorghum," Bergland said. "Because these two crops are being harvested and going under loan, we are putting the higher release and call prices in effect now, rather than wait for October 1, the beginning of the corn and sorghum marketing year."

He said the action also ensures that release and call prices will be based on the higher loan prices for all reserve grain--including grain in existing reserves from 1979 and previous crops.

On July 28, President Carter announced new loan, reserve release and call prices for wheat and feed grains with reserve release prices for wheat set at 140 percent of the loan price and call prices at 175 percent of the loan price. For feed grains, the release prices remain at 125 percent of the loan price and call prices at 145 percent of the loan price.

Farmers who take part in the reserve program agree to hold their grain off the market in reserve until the contract matures or until the farm price reaches the specified release price. When the farm price reaches the call price, farmers agree to repay the loan plus accrued interest and unearned storage payments, or forfeit the commodity to CCC.

With the change, the release price for corn now in reserve is $2.81 per bushel and call price are $3.15 and $3.26 per bushel-125 and 140 or 145 percent, respectively, of the $2.25 per bushel loan price–and up from the $2.63 previous release price and previous call prices of $2.94 and $3.05 per bushel.

That hat and its owner are pleased as punch that their little gal achieved her big dream.

How about a nice, clean, new hat to wear to the fair.

Most of those other corn fellas give hats for buying.
We give hats and knives to our customers and friends for not buying.

This nice red, white and blue hat or one of our other gifts is our gift to our customers and friends for not buying now.

Some feel it is crazy to give a gift to corn farmers just for not buying early. But when you go around the country and see all the Jacques hats it sometimes looks like the whole world has decided not to buy early.

Our idea is that summer is the time to raise the hybrids that you planted last spring. You'll see soon enough which of those hybrids were strong and which were so weak they need to be replaced. Then's the time to buy.

By that time we will have the data on our trials, too. Those 517 Field Trials of ours will tell us — and you — how our present hybrids plus our five new hybrids did on farms right near you. And chances are, your favorite hybrid may be placed right alongside one of those new hybrids so you can see just how they compared.

So no matter which hybrids you're thinking of weeding out, you'll find our 1980 Yieldbook helpful. It's available this fall, and will have the comparisons you need. You can get a jump on things by sending in the coupon for last year's Yieldbook. You'll be amazed at all the information we have for you. Do it right away. And call your Jacques dealer for your free hat or other gift, if he hasn't already stopped by.

Chairman of Maryland Dairy Princess Pageant to retire

Fran Duvall — nineteen years of dairy promotion

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Fran Duvall has been involved with Dairy Princess contests since they began in Maryland 19 years ago. She is more enthusiastic than ever about the benefits of the program both to the girls and to the dairy farmers they represent.

Fran says, "You can see the girls grow tremedously in a year's time. Even on the county level you can see drastic changes though they may not be as active as the state Dairy Princess. There are big changes in maturity. Each year I think it's the best group of girls ever, but each year they get better."

Fran doesn't hesitate when expressing her personal feelings about the girls she has shepherded over the years. "I love them all," she says with a smile.

The wife of Merhle Duvall, 9224 Devilbiss Building Road, Walkersville, Fran lives in the heart of Frederick County which is the largest dairy county in Maryland. The Duvalls rent about 350 acres of land and milk a herd of 55 head of grade Holsteins, mixed, with some Registered Guernseys and Ayshires which were part of their two grown daughters' 4-H projects.

Asked why she has devoted so much time to the county and state pageant over the 19-year period, Fran states simply, "It is also my bread and butter. That's why I have done as much as I have and worked as hard as I have. If I don't promote dairy products I can't expect someone else to do it for me."

In her third year as chairman of the Maryland Dairy Princess Committee, Fran coordinates the appearances of the Princess, together with a chaperone. Among other duties, Fran says, "The committee supplies the information to the girls which allows them to speak intelligently on behalf of the industry. We provide the training seminar to help the girls do the job better, and organize mall promotions and appearances at agricultural week events, county fairs and the state fair."

She adds, "We have done a whole lot more elementary programs than before. I think this is a good direction to go in. The girls have had tremendous reponse from the kids. Children are influenced by television and want their mothers to buy what they see. Little kids, especially, are impressed by the Princess image. Parents tell the girls that their children ask them to buy specific dairy products. I think the experience of helping churn butter or making ice cream makes a big impression on young children."

Taking care of Dairy Princesses is part of the job which Fran Duvall has undertaken for three years as chairman of the state dairy princess promotion committee. Here Fran chats with retiring Dairy Princess Karen Markline moments before Karen gave up her crown.

Homestead Notes

Fran explained that in the Baltimore metropolitan area there are "endless possibilities to meet city kids who have never seen a cow. Often a dairy princess will take a calf along with her. It is a terrific learning experience for them and the expression on their faces is wonderful."

Fran first agreed to help organize a county contest when approached by members of the Farm Bureau in which she and her husband were very active. She recalls, "At first I selected people who represented different breeds. The first year we had a teenage dance and the teenagers danced while the contestants were interviewed. We announced the winners during intermission and served milk and ice cream for refreshments. We funded our own contest. We held dances for the first few years."

Things were different then, Fran acknowledges, "When I first started, it was a title only. Those girls were not involved as they are now. We didn't do anything in the school or on nutrition."

But the program changed, and Fran now says, "We decided we needed something more challenging. We needed to grow. It amazes me how informed the girls are. They are just genuinely interested in learning. Being a Dairy Princess is not just a pretty face."

The Maryland contest has gone from individual county pageants to area contests because of the rapid urbanization of the state. Fran says. "We combined more urban counties and now we have eight areas. This is the first time we have had a representative from each area in the state pageant."

Fran says that most of her personal experience in making appearances with the Dairy Princess has been at mall promotions, which she feels are useful. "I think it is helpful. The girls pass out samples and talk to people." A real measure of the effectiveness of the promotion is the time they ran out of printed recipes, but shoppers took the time to sit down and write off the recipes being used. "I think those people will go home and use them," Fran comments. "It's easy to pick up a brochure and then not read it."

While she is pleased with the job being done by the Dairy Princess, Fran feels more is necessary to promote Joyce Graybill, right, congratulates Fran Duvall on her 19 years' work with dairy princess programs in the state of Maryland. Fran received the plaque, shaped like the state of Maryland, at the state pageant early in August. It was given in recognition of her devotion and dedication to the promotional efforts.

Fran Duvall, left, looks over the program for the annual state Dairy Princess pageant with contest chairman Frances Kepler. Duvall is chairman of the state promotion committee which coordinates Dairy Princess appearances.

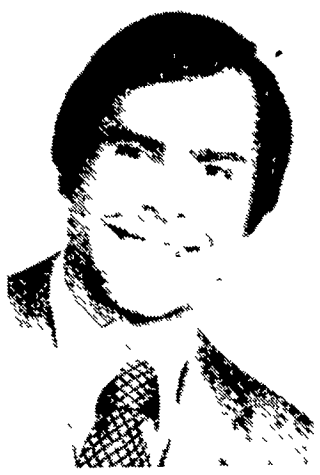
NEMA to hold meeting in Hershey

DURHAM, N.H. - Egg producers from New England and Middle Atlantic States are planning to hold a three-day meeting and conference right in the middle of the "Pennsylvania Egg Basket."

This announcement comes from Al Wenger of Rheems,



AL WENGER

Pa., president of Northeast Egg Marketing Association.

Site of the meeting will be the Hershey Hotel, on October 1, 2, and 3.

In his message to Nema members, Wenger said:

"We invite egg producers from Maine to Maryland to spend three very pleasant days in Central Pennsylvania for a full review of industry issues and problems. Your input will be welcome at our Board Meeting and at our Committee meetings."

A president's reception and banquet will cap the second day of the session.

Claude Silva of Turlock, Cal president of United Egg Producers will be the guest of Nema at Board sessions on October 2 and 3. He is a partner and general manager in Gemperle Enterprises, owning about a million birds and with output of about 12,000 cases a week out of processing plants at Turlock and at Aurora, Oregon. Some 400 acres of almonds round out the Gemperle operation.

Doug Hoffer of Warsaw, Ind. treasurer of U.E.P., will be guest speaker at the Annual Nema Banquet. He is affiliated with the well-known Creghton Brothers egg operations. He has gained national recognition for keen anaylsis and insight covering the egg picture.

"I feel this Nema meeting in Pennsylvania will be a fine vehicle for hammering out issues and policies that can, in turn, be handed up to U.E.P. Best of all we can alternate work with access to one of America's top recreational facilities," Wenger concluded.

milk. "Farmers should also be available to tell their own story. It should not be done just by paid promotional agencies or by the Dairy Princess. We have more support now than we had several years ago. I think it's because they can see where we have progressed. We try to do a good job in informing the public."

Frank points out that she hopes the current wave of support will continue and expresses appreciation for the money which Order Four puts into the program. "They are helping to finance the contest and we have so much more money available. They are fantastic in helping and providing the materials and information we need. Farmers are spending money on the program."

Of course, not everyone can win and do the work of promoting milk as a Dairy Princess but Fran encourages everyone to try out for the title anyway. She states, "I have told the girls as county chairman that nobody is ever a loser. They are still winners because they have gained a little more confidence and poise. There is no way they can lose. They stand only to grow. As in anything, they're going to get out of it what they put in it."

Joyce Graybill, director of dairy promotion for the Atlantic Dairy Council, presented Fran with a plaque for her dedicated service to the program at this year's state pageant held two weeks ago. Fran says this is her last year as state chairman because she wants to devote time to other interests. She is in her tenth year at Walkersville Elementary School as a volunteer, is a past president of Jaycees wives, was active in the Young Republicans and enjoys bowling. She says, "Music is my hobby." She proves that by being music director for the kindergarten church school at the Frederick Church of the Brethren and accompanist for its temple choir for over 14 years.

In addition to working on the farm - field work is her favorite job - she helps clerk sales and run slips at cow sales for her brother-in-law A. Doty Remsburg.

She is a proud grandmother of a two-year-old, Amy Frances, and she is sure to find more time to spend with her granddaugther.

It's apparent that Fran has gotten a lot of rewards from her 19 years' work in the program And she has helped a lot of girls grow to greater maturity while they did their job for the dairymen of Maryland.

Tailgate suppers for the tailend of summer

Tailgate suppers. For some they mean the snack or full course meal that they enjoy in the parking lot before the game. For others they mean the hot meal that farm wives tote in the pickup truck to their husbands who are busy finishing the last round of haying or the last tobacco topping.

Whichever they mean to your family, there are lots of nutritious ideas in our column today to choose from.

Tip: Now would be the perfect time to sow some leaf lettuce in a small bed for your family's fall meals. An old window sash makes an excellent and quick cold frame to help your family enjoy the leafy vegetable longer. Why not plant a small bed of the lettuce?

In a recent column, we ran a recipe for Sunset Jam. The sugar in the recipe was missing. The correct recipe follows:

This Cottage Cheese Tomato Ring filled with relishes would be a special touch to any tailgate meal.

SUNSET JAM

3 cups crushed pears
1 cup crushed pineapple
¾ cup chopped maraschino cherries
¼ cup real lemon juice
6½ cups sugar
1 bottle of fruit pectin, 1 cup

Mix all the ingredients except the pectin in a pan and bring to a boil. Add the pectin. Cook the mixture until it coats the tines of a fork. Remove from heat and pour the mixture quickly into glasses. Cover with hot paraffin.

Vera Scott, Cortland, New York

FRIED CHICKEN

1 2½-3 pound frying chicken salt
buttermilk
¼ cup flour
¼ cup bread crumbs
½ teaspoon paprika
shortening

Rinse and dry chicken. Salt each piece on both sides. Place in a non-metal container and refrigerate 1-2 hours. Remove and dip in buttermilk, then roll in flour which has been blended with fine dry bread crumbs and paprika. Place on a rack and let rest 15 minutes before frying. Heat shortening ¼ inch deep in a skillet. Brown on both sides. Reduce heat and cover. Cook 30-40 minutes. Remove cover last 10 minutes.

B. Russell, Pine Bush, New York

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

4 cups peeled zucchini
1 cup diced onion
1 can cream of mushroom or celery soup
1 cup grated cheese, sharp or medium
½ cup butter, melted
¾ cup fine bread crumbs
salt and pepper to taste

On low heat, cook the zucchini and onion until tender. Use as little water as possible, then drain. Add soup and cheese on low heat and melt butter. Stir the crumbs into butter and put on top of the casserole. Bake at 350° F. for about 20 minutes.

QUESTION: I'd like a recipe for drying tomatoes. My great grandmother used to dry them and use them in a pie in the wintertime. I'd also like the recipe for the pie.

COTTAGE CHEESE TOMATO RING

Top layer:
1 18-ounce tomato juice
1 bay leaf
4 whole cloves
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Bottom layer:
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 cups cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced green pepper
1 tablespoon sliced green onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ teaspoon salt salad greens
relishes

To prepare the top layer, combine the tomato juice, bay leaf and cloves in a saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes. Remove bay leaf and cloves. Meanwhile soften gelatin in cold water. Add to hot tomato juice and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar, salt and lemon juice. Pour into a mold and chill until set. For best results don't let the first layer get too solid before adding the second or they tend to separate during unmolding.

To prepare the bottom layer, soften the gelatin in cold water in a small saucepan. Heat over very low heat, stirring constantly until the gelatin is dissolved. Add cottage cheese, sour cream, celery, green pepper, onion, lemon juice, mustard, sugar and salt. Stir until thoroughly blended. Pour over tomato layer in mold. Chill until firm. Place salad greens on chilled plates. Unmold salad by dipping warm water and place on greens. Fill center of mold with relishes.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

CHECK VINEGAR LABELS FOR ACIDITY BEFORE MAKING PICKLES

Vinegar is vinegar. That is a wrong assumption that many consumers make. When you make your own pickles that assumption could lead to problems.

Homemade pickle products generate the most problems for home canners. Some of these problems can be avoided from the start by choosing the recommended 5 percent strength of vinegar.

The next time you are buying vinegar, take time to read the labels including the fine print. Vinegar is sold in different strengths of acidity from 4 to 6 percent; as white or regular vinegars; and in various sized containers and under store or nationally known labels.

Only a 5 percent acidity vinegar is recommended by food scientists for making safe pickle products at home. White vinegar is the best to use in some recipes because it does not discolor light colored foods, such as pickled onions and some fruits.

Some vinegar processors make a 4 percent acidity vinegar and it is usually sold at a lower cost and is sometimes called table vinegar. More recently, so-called salad vinegar having only 3 percent acidity is available in some food retail markets.

The acidity strength of vinegar usually appears in fine print on the label. Do check prices and get the best vinegar buy, but be aware that the 5 percent acidity strength of vinegar recommended for homemade pickles may cost you more money. However, the few pennies extra you will spend will be worth it in a quality pickle product.

VEGETABLES FOR OUTDOOR MEALS

This is the season for barbecues and picnics Whatever the main dish - hot dogs, burgers, steaks or chicken - plan a cooked vegetable or two. Individual portions of vegetables may be cooked and served in packets of aluminum foil. Or you may cook family-size amounts and let each person help themselves.

Two-in-one combos are especially good. For example, team summer squash with thinly sliced onion, green peas with small onions, green beans with celery, or cut corn with green peppers.

Here is how to precede: arrange the prepared fresh vegetables on squares of aluminum foil. Use a single thickness of the heavy duty type or a double of regular household foil. Add seasonings, salt, pepper, and butter or margarine. Bring the foil up over the vegetables and seal all the edges to make an envelope. Place the packets of vegetables over a hot grill. Turn them once or twice to make sure they cook evenly.

You will need to allow about one-half hour cooking time depending on the type of vegetable, the size of the packet, and the heat of the fire.

For extra flavor, tuck in a sprig of parsley, celery tops, diced onion or a pinch of fresh or dried herbs.

WHY PICKLES SHRIVEL

We have been receiving many calls this season as to why pickles shrivel during the pickling process. There are several causes for this problem. They are: using hard water; pickles overcooked; syrup is too heavy; too strong a brine or vinegar solution; pickles not fresh enough at the outset and fruit cooked too harshly in the vinegar/sugar mixture.

To prevent your pickles from shriveling: make sure you are using an up-to-date, tested pickle recipe; use soft or distilled water; combine salt, sugar and vinegar more evenly and slowly; the ideal size of pickles for pickling is four to five inches in length and cook your pickles slower and at a lower heat.

If you do not have an up-to-date recipe for pickling, contact your County Extension Office and ask for your free copy.

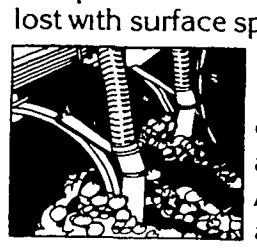
Switch fertilizer tanks to a Calumet vacuum tank with soil injector

Liquid hog manure can save thousands of dollars in commercial fertilizer costs So it makes sense to preserve that value with good management.

That's why Calumet recommends pairing our vacuum tank with a 2 or 4-shank Calumet soil injector Soil plow down retains about four times the nitrogen lost with surface spreading, plus reduces odor and runoff.



Stop in to see the full line of Calumet vacuum tanks — in capacities from 1180 to 4500 gallons and choice of two vacuum pumps. And ask about the benefits of using a Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector.

Ever consider how many items now carry that written warning these days? It's printed on the labeling of a variety of merchandise from cigarettes to saccharin.

But they slipped up on one thing that really oughta' carry some kind of hazard alert.

Who forgot the warning on white T-shirts?

With T-shirt reading now one of the great national pastimes, you can find slogans that range in content from wholesome pitches for farm products to phrases that can at best be politely described as X-rated.

Regardless of the literary content, those shirts all end up dirty (as in soiled). And white ones are the all-time laundry disaster winners - at least at our house. Really, "dirty" is much too gentle a description. Filthy. Cruddy. Messy. Yukky. Impossible. Those are more appropriate.

That's when white T-shirts turn into health hazards - when scores of mothers begin thinking clean. I know my own blood pressure soars, I grind my teeth in despair, rub my palms raw and splinter whatever little bit of fingernail is left in hopeless attempts to scrub, soak and suds those stains away.

It's one big waste of time. And the greater the accumulation of stains and spots, the longer the fabric in the shirt will wear. Grease and goo apparently strengthen the threads with lifespans into infinity. For instance, one once-white T-shirt has regularly, gone through several years of wash cycles in our basement and simply refuses to die. It says, "Here Comes Trouble." Prophetic, huh?

Mothers of the T-shirt set, unite! Campaign for colored shades like hydraulic oil black, grass-stain green and back-forty brown.,

And if they still insist on bringing home those white jobs, remember: they make great window cleaning rags.

Think 'Peachilicious' over Labor Day

GATCHELVILLE — Peach food, peach crafts, peach puppet, peach fun in the orchards and all over Maple Lawn Farms will add up to the 1980 Peachilicious Labor Day Weekend at this Pennsylvania farm located three miles north of Fawn Grove at Gatchellville.

Most activities for this festivity, scheduled August 30 to September 1, are indoors. Craftsmen will be showing and selling their wares, all with something peachy to feature.

The United Methodist Church, Airville, will feature corn husk and pine cone creations with peach pits, plaques, dried flowers and yarn objects along with pies and fudge.

Nature art is the specialty of Harry and Millie Rauscher, new comers to the show. They use peach wood for some of their art.

Bernard DeChant, Red Lion, uses peach seeds in macrame plant holders. Gloria Linburg specializes in leather craft in her Red Lion Sleepy Hides Shop. For the festival, she creates peach shaped key holders, and uses the peach blossom design on some of her belts.

Samuel Reed of Shippensburg uses the peach pit exclusively to fashion nick nacks, jewelry, miniature animal carvings. Original tole painting on tin and wood items bring forth an array of fruit and flowers in the corner occupied by Frederick Hughes and his wife from Gettysburg.

A special treat on Sunday will feature Elbert A. Peach, Puppet Factory muppet puppet who will tell of his marvelous transformation into "Super Peach".

On display each day will be the Food Globe, on loan from Agriculture Council of America showing the price comparisons of American grown food to that of food in six other countries. Pocket size globes will be given free to people who pick three bushels of peaches or more. The handsome red/white/blue globe is part of the "Agriculture: It's Your Heartbeat, America!" program.

For more details contact Gail McPherson, Maple Lawn Farms, New Park, PA 17352.

Serving up the peachy roast pork for York County Pork Producers is L.C. Wambaugh, center, Richard Luckenbaugh and David Glenn. Each year the organization profits thru fresh pork and ham sandwich proceeds earned at the Maple Lawn Farms Peachilicious Labor Day Weekend.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The view from my kitchen window is forever changing.

There is a trumpet vine outside which continually tries to get inside and under the window is a bed of iris which my daughter sent to me when she lived in Portland, Oregon. Beyond the patch of lawn is a tea bed which in ten years has expanded to ten times its original size. Someday I shall have to destroy most of it.

A sight to behold each morning is the 100 some Heavenly Blue morning glories blooming on the rail fence. They are as "pretty as a picture". In the garden below the tea are row after row of vegetables. They are constant reminders of the work to be accomplished each day.

I pick the cucumbers every day so my jars will be filled with tiny spiced sweet pickles that my family likes so much. The tomatoes also demand constant attention.

Beyond these are the rows of strawberry plants that are such a chore to keep clean. Then comes the 100 foot long fence with Kentucky Wonder beans and pole limas tightly clinging to it. Still farther away is the sweetcorn patch that had to be protected from the raccoons again this year with an electric fence.

Just before the meadow fence are my husband's new rows of red raspberries and thornless blackberries.

What I see in the meadow varies according to the time of day. In the morning the cows slowly plod from the milking parlor down to their favorite tree to loll in the shade.

Sometimes I spy the six geese, which we've had for years, marching triumphantly to the water with a new addition. After many nests of eggs they finally hatched one gosling this summer.

Occasionally I glimpse some yellow, red or green canoes gliding down the Conestoga and I pause for a minute to view their passing before taking up my work again.

Hot humid weather slows fieldwork

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania farmers found five days suitable for fieldwork during the week ending August 11, but hot days and high humidity prevented major progress in haymaking and other activities.

Field activities included harvesting of potatoes, cabbage, peaches, apples, watermelon and cantaloupes. Other field work included making hay, baling straw, harvesting small grains, topping tobacco, fall plowing and chopping corn

Although soil moisture remains short to adequate statewide, a wide variation has developed between northern counties and those in central and southern areas Northern farmers rated soil at 48 percent surplus to 24 percent adequate for the week. Central and southern farmers, however rated soils at 92 and 93 percent short in soil moisture, respectively

Pennsylvania corn is now 66 percent silked and 12 percent in the dough stage, compared to 49 percent in silk last week. In 1979, the corn crop stood at 63 percent silked and 12 percent in dough at this time, and the five-year average is 60 percent silked and 17 percent in dough.

Corn was 73 percent in silk and ten percent in dough in the north, 63 percent silked and nine percent dough in central areas and 59 percent silked and 19 percent in dough stage in southern areas. Some Japanese beetle damage has been reported throughout the state.

Wheat harvest stands at 91 percent across the state, compared to 88 percent this time last year. Harvest was 76 percent in the north and virtually complete in central and southern counties

Oats harvest was at 71 percent complete, ahead of last year's 52 percent. Northern operators reported oats harvest as 36 percent while central and southern operators reported harvest at 93 percent

Potato harvest is 12 percent complete, behind the 1979 figure of 18 percent. Harvest was at 12 percent in north and south, and six percent in central counties

Fall plowing is reported as 16 percent complete, compared to the five percent complete a year ago. Northern plowing is nine percent complete, while central and southern counties are at 21 and 18 percent respectively

The humid weather prevented most farmers from making a second cutting of alfalfa hay, as harvest moved up slightly to 76 percent, two percent ahead of last year. The north reported 60 percent harvested, central areas were at 84 percent complete and the south was at 92 percent.

Third cutting was also slowed at 20 percent statewide, compared to 12 percent a year ago. Northern areas were at 18 percent, while central and southern areas were at 19 and 22 percent.

Second cutting of clover-timothy advanced to 46 percent compared to 44 percent in 1979.

Hay made in the week was rated as good to fair with northern hay quality rated 44 percent fair to 28 percent good. Central Pennsylvania reported 57 percent good to 29 percent fair, and the south report ranged from 61 percent to 31 percent fair.

Feed from pasture remained about the same as 56 percent was rated below average to 33 percent average. In northern Pennsylvania feed from pasture was rated from 22 percent above average to 39 percent average and 39 percent below average. Central areas reported 73 percent below average and 27 percent average while southern pastures were rated 61 percent below average and 27 percent average while southern pastures were rated 61 percent below average and 31 percent average

Apple and peach harvest is reported to be good this year

Fuel supplies were rated again as adequate to surplus throughout the state. LP gas was 78 percent adequate to 22 percent surplus, while both gasoline and diesel fuel were rated 80 percent adequate to 17 percent surplus

U.S. halts Guatemala meat imports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has removed Guatemala's five meat slaughtering plants from the list of exporters approved to ship meat products to the United States.

Earlier this year, USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service removed three of Guatemala's five slaughtering plants from the list of approved exporters after U.S. inspectors found shipments with excessive levels of pesticides at a port-of-entry, said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

"Our import inspectors had been sampling the Guatemalan shipments under a tightened monitoring plan because of previous violation," Foreman said.

"Last July FSQS found evidence that meat shipments from the two remaining certified plants may have contained meat produced in one of the three 'delisted' plants."

During subsequent investigation, serious weaknesses were found in procedures for certifying that Guatemalan meat products comply with U.S. standards, Foreman said. Those findings led to the decision to stop accepting Guatemalan meat until the questions are resolved.

USDA will continue to investigate the situation. The Guatemalans are cooperating with USDA officials to resolve the problem, she said.

"We will not make any further decision on accepting meat shipments from Guatemala pending the outcome of these investigations," she said.

The U.S. imported 33.4 million pounds of meat from Guatemala in 1979, Foreman said, representing about 1.5 percent of the total of U.S. meat imports.

FSQS administers the Federal Meat Inspection Act and is responsible for the wholesomeness and safety of meat entering the U.S.

York Countians sweep state plowing competition

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HERSHEY — History seems to repeat itself every 10 years or so as York County swept the State Plowing Championships held Saturday on the Hershery Farms.

When the dust had cleared along the Swatara Creek beneath an autumn-like blue sky pocked with fluffy white clouds, winners in the 1980 Pennsylvania State Plowing Contest were:

Charles Hess, R1 Dallastown, in the Small Plow Division, who is no stranger to the competition.

John P. Miller, R1 Airville, his counterpart in the Large Plow Division.

Andy Myers, R1 Dallastown, the Contour Division winner.

It was just about 10 years ago that Hess led a contingent of York County sodbusters in a similar sweep of the contest. At that time, his fellow champs were brothers Gerald and Dale Rebert, of Spring Grove.

Hess also ended up as a Triple Crown Winner, winning the large plow and contour categories in previous years.

For Miller, it was two for two, having won the contour test back in 1972.

The highest Myers had finished previously in the state was third in all three categories.

Hess, sporting a bright green and white plowing competition T-shirt, has been competing since about 1957. His sons also have taken part in the competition.

Hess and Miller have dairy operations and Myers operates a beef and grain farm.

Hess operated a Case 470 tractor equiped with a CH 14 Case plow. Myers was behind the wheel of a Massey-Ferguson 265 with an IH Model 60 plow. Miller drove an IH 544 with an IH semi-mounted 540.

The Plowing Contest was held in conjunction with an Energy and Conservation Fair sponsored by the Dauphin, Lancaster and Lebanon County Conservation Districts.

Others finishers in the competition:

Small Plow — Neil F. Leffler, Dauphin County; Gerald R. Alwine, Somorset County; and Tim Gordon, Fulton County.

Large Plow — Sheldon K. Benton, Somorset County; Gary L. Crain, Cumberland County; Curtis L. Glazier, Fulton County; and Terry E. Mauser, Dauphin County.

Contour — James F. Mowry, Somorset County; William H. Crain, Cumberland County; Earl R. Carbaugh, Fulton County; and Dennis R. Leffler, Dauphin County.

York 4-H Beef Club announces dates

YORK — The York County 4-H Baby Beef Club held their August meeting at the home of Chris and Kenny Sunday.

Daniel Shive reminded members to get their official health papers from Harrisburg for the upcoming York Fair. In addition to the health papers, all animals will need verification of shipping fever shots. If there are any questions, call Mr. Shive or the Extension Office immediately.

Caretakers are needed for the steers at the York Fair. If anyone is interested, call Brenda Walters or Tony Dobrosky.

Keystone Exposition entry cards are now available. If you plan to show animals there and did not receive entry cards, call the Extension Office or your local 4-H leader. Closing date for entries is August 31.

The meeting program was a hoof trimming and foot care demonstration presented by Don Sunday. Reported by Christine Shive.

ARCADIAN® liquid gives a profitable boost to alfalfa after every cutting.

Give alfalfa a liquid boost after the first cutting.

That's when topdressing N-P-K, and micronutrients in an Arcadian® liquid fertilizer made with POLY-N® pays big dividends in high yielding, high quality alfalfa. You can even add pesticides if you need to.

When it's done right, a topdressing after every cutting will increase the yields. It will raise the protein content. Help the crop compete better against grasses. And improve the vigor for a long stand life.

Arcadian liquid makes it easy. Made the SLF® way. Arcadian liquid gives you uniform distribution of fertilizer ingredients from start to finish. It's truly the efficient way to turn alfalfa into green gold.

SCS map of important farmland available for Lancaster

LANCASTER — The Lancaster County Important Farmland Map are now available for public distribution announced Warren M. Archibald, District Conservationist, U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service.

Important Farmland Maps identify prime and other important farmlands within a County, he explained.

Prime farmland has fertile soil, is well-drained and is gently sloping. Its crop yields are good or better than other soils in the State and needs little protection from erosion.

Prime farmlands are those lands best suited for producing food, forage, and fiber with the least costs in energy and environmental risks. Important farmlands are not the best farmlands, but they are of good quality and do play a role in the economy, he stated.

The maps are produced by the Soil Conservation Service to provide landowners and local units of government with information for making land use decisions.

Only by knowing where a county's best farmland is located can county residents and officials hope to effectively plan economic development, Archibald stressed.

The map, which is based on Lancaster County Soil Surveys, will be available at the Soil Conservation Service Office at the Farm and Home Center.

USDA to review dairy product grading rules

WASHINGTON, D.C. — S. Department of riculuture regulations on inspection and grading of iry products will be viewed as part of an going evaluation of all leral regulations.

The review, required by a esidential executive order, intended to eliminate necessary government gulations and ensure that regulations are written nply and clearly, acrding to Donald Houston, iministrator of USDA's od Safety and Quality rvice.

The review is also signed to ensure rules are nsistent with legislative als and minimize any verlapping jurisdiction ith other federal agencies, said.

"We want to conduct a orough review of these ading regulations," uston said, "so we are king consumers, industry ficials and others interested in the agency to suggest ways to improve these regulations."

Among the regulations under review are those which USDA uses to approve dairy plant facilities for grading services and those under which USDA grades butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk This includes looking at regulations on grade standards—criteria such as flavor and appearance on which grade levels are based—to ensure they are understandable and concise.

In the coming months, Food Safety and Quality Service plans to look at other regulations, he said. These reviews will be done by a regulatory review task force appointed by Houston. A copy of the plan which the task force will use in its reviews is available for public inspection in the agency's regulations coordination division, room 2637-S, during regular business hours.

Comments on the regulations on grading of dairy products must be received on or before September 30. The notice of this review was published in the August 1 Federal Register, available in most local libraries

Making The Most Of Your Corn Crop

Corn is the number one feed crop grown locally. As the harvest season approaches and as the corn is drying down due to summer droughts, leafblights, maturity, etc. farmers are asking how to make the best use of their corn crop. In addition to drying out rapidly, some corn is short, poorly-eared, poorly-pollinated, hail damaged, etc.

Much of this corn can probably be utilized best as silage; the nutrient and dry matter yields per acre will be greatest, and any extra silage that can be harvested will help make up for reduced hay yields. However, there are some important points that need to be considered: nitrate toxicity, energy value and moisture of the crop when harvested

Nitrates and Energy

Drought-damaged corn usually has higher levels of accumulated nitrates, especially for 3 to 5 days after a rain that has followed a prolonged dry period. Nitrate levels are also higher in immature corn, in corn that is heavily fertilized with nitrogen, and also in stunted, hail-damaged corn. Thus, there is advantage in letting the crop reach normal ensiling maturity; this allows the crop more time to convert accumulated nitrates into plant protein.

As the crop continues to mature, it will continue to accumulate more carbohydrates (energy) in the ear, or in the stalk if there is no ear. So, a barren stalk, allowed to reach normal ensiling maturity, may contain about the same amount of energy as a stalk with an ear. Have you ever observed red stalks of corn at grain harvest time? Chances are, these were barren stalks, and the red color was due to the higher sugar content of the stalk; there was no ear into which the sugars could go. Therefore, allowing the crop to reach normal ensiling maturity (soft dough dent) will increase energy yield per acre, and it will improve silage quality. The extra energy in the silage will encourage better fermentation - this means better quality silage - and it helps reduce the risk of nitrate toxicity and the formation of silo gases.

Handling A Dry Crop

This is fine and dandy, but what about my corn crop which is rapidly drying out? For good preservation, reduced nitrate toxicity and less silo gas formation, and for good feed quality, the moisture content at ensiling time is very important. The desired range is 65 to 70%, with 65% being about ideal for tower silos, and 70% ideal for bunkers. So, the moisture content of your crop may force you into cutting sooner than you like, but, don't be fooled by the appearance of the plant. There may be more moisture in the plant than you think, especially in the stalk.

What can you do if your crop gets too dry? Several things. Add water - and I mean LOTS of water - to the silage at the blower; it'll take about 60 gallons of water to raise the moisture content of one ton of 50% moist silage to 60% moisture. That's more water than you can get from a garden hose in the amount of time it takes to unload one ton! So, if you find yourself in this situation, you may need a large reservoir (drum, etc.) of water at the blower for rapid unloading.

If good fields of higher moisture corn are nearby, you can alternate loads of wet corn with dry corn. However, I would think twice before doing this. It makes no sense to ruin a bushel of good apples by adding rotten apples to it! Similarily, I can't see running good supply of silage by adding a poor crop to it I might consider risking part of my good crop though, if it is absolutely necessary in order to salvage a dry field and if I desprately needed that dry silage. Silo space permitting, I would prefer to ensile the good crop separately. I would also sample the poorer crop as it goes into the silo so I can be forewarned as to its feeding value, nitrate levels, etc. in order that I can more wisely plan my feeding program. This also gives me the flexibility to manage my feed supplies - to utilize the poorer supplies of feed in such a manner where it will do the least harm. If the supply of this "pre-tested" silage is large enough, I would also have it retested after I had started to feed it, so that I could fine-tune my feeding program.

When moisture content is outside the acceptable range of 60 to 70%, there may be some merit in considering the use of a preservative, especially those that aid lactic acid formation by encouraging lactic acid producing bacteria. When nitrate and silo gas problems are anticiated, the use of 8 pounds of sodium metabisulfite per ton may help reduce the risk; also, do not add urea and other non-protein nitrogen additives under such conditions.

Green Chop and Uncured Silage

What about green-chopping corn or feeding uncured silage? Feeding green chopped corn does not allow for control of nitrate intake. Green chopped corn and uncured silage can also cause butter fat depressions. Until the corn plant has undergone normal fer-

Grange asks restoration of $192 million to ACP

HARRISBURG — Charles E. Wismer, Jr., Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange Monday called for the U.S. Senate to restore the original $190 million allocation to the Agricultural Conservation Program budget, in Harrisburg.

"Some $50 million has been removed from the Agricultural Conservation Program budget," Wismer said. "It is of paramount importance that this amount be returned so an effective job can be done on soil conservation."

The problem stems from a large Defense budget that includes a heavy increase due to civilian payroll increases.

"This is a feature unique to the Defense budget," says Ken Auer, of the Senate Appropriations Committee staff.

Senator Thomas Eagleton, of Missouri, introduced an amendment to the full Senate Appropriations Committee today, calling for $200 million dollars to be restored to the Agricultural Appropriations Subcommittee.

In a communication to Senator Schweiker, who sits on the Senate Appropriation Committee, Wismer urged support of the Eagleton amendment, saying "any reduction in the amount of funds available to the Agricultural Conservation Program, would mean a reduction in the amount available to Pennsylvania."

"Since Pennsylvania is in the forefront, in terms of soil and water conservation," Wismer said, "a reduction in the amount of funds available means a less effective program."

Also participating in the activities at the National 4-H Center were from left: Bruce Hellerick, Lebanon County; Dorene Hertzog, Berks County; Joann Brenneman, Lancaster County; Julia Mills, Berks; Sue Bomberger, Lebanon; Cheryl Adams, Karen Smith, and Glenn Yanos, Berks; and Cindy Risser, Lancaster County. Eighty-five Pennsylvania 4-H'ers participated.

Figuring Fleet Costs? Remember . . . .
Propane is better.

Maintenance? Clean-burning LP-gas eliminates carbon build-up and engine sludge that causes poor performance and result in costly downtime for repairs and overhauls

Parts costs? Fewer tune-ups, fewer oil changes, no fuel pump .these mean money in your pocket

Cost per gallon? Figure it out in your own area Most often, LP-gas wins over gasoline hands down

Fuel availability? Many types of fleet vehicles qualify as priority users of LP-gas. Check your situation with your local dealer

When a gasoline engine needs replacement an LP gas powered engine still has a long way to go nearly twice as long That s like getting two engines for the price of one

Egg board nominations requested

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Certified egg producer organizations are being asked to nominate prospective member and alternates to the American Egg Board, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland anncounced today.

The 18-member board administers the egg research and promotion order authorized by the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act.

The nominations, due Sept 1, are to fill upcoming vacanies caused by the expiration of terms for nine members and their alternates at the end of 1980. The new terms will be for calendar years 1981 and 1982.

The current North Atlantic states members, whose terms will expire at the end of this year, are Emanuel Hirth, Manchester, Conn., and Maurice S. Cohen, alternate, Hollis Center, Maine; Norman J. Hecht, Walden, N.Y., and John A. Ricca, alternate, N. Billerica, Mass.

These board members may be renominated, Bergland said. Under the terms of the act, members are eligible to serve three consecutive terms. Nominations are to be made by the 60 egg producer organizations, associations or cooperatives certified eligible by Bergland.

The egg research and promotion order provides that certified organizations within an area can meet for the purpose of jointly nominating members and alternates. Nominations should be sent to Thomas H. Porer, director, Livestock, Poultry, Grain and Seed Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Md. Grange grants deaf education scholarships

The Maryland State Grange has created a special new program to provide scholarships in the education of the deaf, and earlier this year formed the Deaf Scholarship Committee to administer this program. The formation of this scholarship program in the field of education of the deaf represents a continuation on the part of the Grange of its program of work with the deaf

On August 5 the Deaf Scholarship Committee met to review applications for the 1980-1981 school year. A number of applications were reviewed and the Committee has selected two persons who will be awarded $500 scholarships.

The first of these recipients is Ms. Kimberly Davenport from Phoenix, Maryland. Kimberly is a student at Towson State College majoring in speech pathology and audiology. Upon her graduation, she hopes to work with deaf children The other recipient is Ms. L. Ann Witworth from Westminster, Maryland. Ms. Whitworth is a graduate student at Western Maryland College and is enrolled in the counseling program Ms. Whitworth, who is herself deaf and who has a young son enrolled in the Maryland school for the Deaf, hopes to earn a degree in guidance counseling in the spring of 1981.

The Maryland State Grange plans to continue its program of providing scholarships in the field of education of the deaf.

Thomson named Extension coordinator

UNIVERSITY PARK — Joan S. Thomson, assistant for cooperative relations for Penn State's Cooperative Extension Service, has been appointed Extension coordinator of staff development and training, effective Sept. 1.

Thomas B. King, Penn State associate dean for extension, points out that Thomson will coordinate staff orientation programs for new Extension staff members; initiate the development of Extension in-service training conferences based on program needs; and provide leadership in linking staff with appropriate graduate study and other professional improvement programs.

She will participate in the development and implementation of a long-range management training plan for Extension. She will also coordinate initiation of a three-year plan of in-service education for Extension personnel.

She will continue to coordinate an integrated research-extension program for rural communities across Pennsylvania under Title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972. Since 1974, such programs have been initiated in Indiana, Clarion, and Somerset counties.

She fills the position previously held by Michael R. Lynch who recently retired.

A member of the College of Agriculture facility since January, 1972, she first served as assistant state home economics leader for the Central Extension Region.

In September, 1972, Dr. Thomson was granted a one-year leave of absence through the Intergovernmental Personnel Act to provide staff support for rural development activities in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since returning to Penn State in 1973, she has worked with both governmental and non-governmental agencies to develop Extension programs such as Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H and Symposia for County Commissioners as well as provide background information to Extension staff to support program grants in such areas as health and nutrition education; energy; rehabilitation; the arts; community services and facilities including transportation; water; sewage.

In 1979, Dr. Thomson received a Provost Fellowship to participate in the Summer Institute for Women in Higher Education Administration at Bryn Mawr College.

Regulations, weather stifle farm sales

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Fickle government regulators and disagreeable weather make it necessary for American farmers to work harder at selling their products, according to Robert B. Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

U.S. trading partners are nervous about everything from embargoes to volcanic ash, requiring farmers to "sell doubly hard to reconvince others that we are reliable suppliers," Delano said at a Farm Bureau sponsored grain conference in Chicago Wednesday.

Speaking before state Farm Bureau and grain industry conferees, the Farm Bureau leader expressed fear that in the current election season, politicians are becoming preoccupied with attempts to manipulate farmers and their markets.

"Some political and social scientists seem to feel that food production is too important to leave to farmers," Delano said.

Such a view, he said, could lead to food shortages and higher costs brought on by government interference in the nation's food supply system through production controls, price support programs, a comprehensive system of federal grain reserves and international grain agreements.

Delano said there are many farm-related questions needing immediate answers, including those involving improved markets through foreign trade.

Farmers want assurance they will be able to move into world markets without having export doors closed in their faces by regulators from our own government, Delano said.

"We are pledged to see that producer members receive profitable prices for their commodities," the farm leader concluded.

Donoghue is one vet who cares about Pa. livestock producers

BY SHEILA MILLER

KENNETT SQUARE — If you had to pick out one word to describe Susan Donoghue, one of the veterinarians at New Bolton Center responsible for organizing last week's sheep clinic, that word would have to be enthusiastic.

This 5'2" brunette is bubbling from head to toe about the recent efforts and interest by sheep producers and veterinarians in creating better communication in the ovine industry.

Last Thursday's clinic which brought sheep producers and practitioners to the Center for an update on sheep management and flock health was the beginning of a long-range attempt to improve the state of ovine health in Pennsylvania.

As Donoghue relates the findings of a 1978 survey on veterinary services and benefits to the sheep industry, one can't help but detect her strong sentiment and dedication to the cause of improving the medical field's awareness of the problems plaguing sheep producers. She cites the need for research money from state and federal sources to help to carry out the needed studies on parasites, nutrition, lamb losses, and various diseases.

Donoghue tells how the school of veterinary medicine has already taken a step towards better veterinary health care by offering a course in sheep and goat medicine to its veterinary students. Last year, she says, 56 students signed up for the course — this year that number has increased to 70.

"Producers aren't getting consistently marketable lambs," she says. "We've found that only ¼ of them vaccinate for tetanus or enterotoxemia. White muscle disease kills over 2000 lambs each year in Pennsylvania alone. And there are some lambs that just plain starve to death."

Dr. Susan Donoghue, the petite staff vet at New Bolton Center, is a big supporter of livestock producers in Pennsylvania.

Looking into the future, Donoghue hopes to increase the flock in residence at the New Bolton Center by adding a breeding flock of about 30 ewes this Fall.

Because of these and other problems, New Bolton Center and the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine has started the much needed health forums to educate producers and veterinarians, alike and to help them better understand the needs of the ovine industry. They have also begun an on-farm study of about 20 sheep producers around the state.

These sheep farms, most of which are in Lancaster County says Donoghue, range from operations with 8 to 9 ewes to others with 300 to 400 ewes

Through these studies, Donoghue explains, the Center will be taking a look at the history of health care and management of the flock.

"We'll be looking at breeding records, shearing schedules, weaning percentages, and checking the fecal samples for parasite burdens. By also sampling the feed, we hope to determine the nutrient intake of the sheep and what possible interaction this might have with the parasite burden as far as nutrition economics is concerned," she says.

At the close of the study, recommendations will be given to the producers on how they might improve their management program. "We'll try not to influence the producers until after all the data is gotten — that is unless there is a severe problem and our advice is needed immediately for the sheeps' well-being."

This research along with future forums for teaching producers the proper method of taking temperatures, giving shots, and emergency health care, will aim toward the improvement of the overall industry, Donoghue concludes.

Although her enthusiam for the sheep program has led to hours of involvement, this only accounts for 20 percent of her time spent at the Center.

Since she received her VMD in 1976, Donoghue has spent 10 percent of her time teaching the vet students, with 70 to 90 percent of her time tied up in the research laboratory.

One of her studies involved Vitamin A metabolism in horses as a model for a similar human disease. Her work involved checking the relationship of the amount of Vitamin A consumed and its effect on the development of the young horse's muscles and skeleton.

"There is a narrow margin of safety on how much Vitamin A intake is toxic and how much is too low. We've found through our studies here that the National Research Council's guidelines are too low and that they could lead to a mild deficiency."

Donoghue went on to explain that Vitamin A is gotten by the horse naturally through the carotene in hay. This precursor, carotene, is rapidly destroyed after the grass has been cut and cured. Hay that has been stored for one year has only 10 percent of the Vitamin A it had available at the time of its initial cutting, she notes.

Where this becomes a problem, she says, is in young foals who are weaned off their mothers and then fed poor quality hay. She explains that foals are born with little Vitamin A stored in their livers. "They can get some Vitamin A from their mother's milk but not enough to carry them through the growing stages if they are fed poor hay."

What happens to a horse that has too little or too much Vitamin A? Donoghue describes them as poor growers with mild bone lesions and mild anemia. "It's bad for a horse that's an athlete — they need good bone and good metabolism to be successful."

"The hardest part about Vitamin A deficiencies is that the horse looks clinically normal —, the problem is difficult to diagnose," she states.

In her studies on Vitamin A, Donoghue says she used Standardbreds from New Holland Sales Stables that were so skinny and wormy that not even the meat buyers wanted them. Although most of the test horses were placed in good homes after the study was completed, Donoghue has been unable to place one she calls "Sugar".

"I feel kind of guilty about her — I guess that's why I

"Sugar" is the last remaining Standardbred used by Donoghue in her research on the effects of Vitamin A on muscle and skeleton growth in young horses. At left, she points out the straight pasterns that can result if too much Vitamin A is consumed.

Ovine parasites, diseases keep sheep producers flocking to clinic

KENNETT SQUARE — Over 175 shepherds, veterinarians, and students flocked to the New Bolton Center of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine on Thursday evening.

Representing three states, these ovine enthusiasts congregated in a crowded auditorium to hear the latest on health management in the sheep industry.

The clinic, one of the first of its kind at the Center, was organized as a result of a survey of Pennsylvania sheep producers and veterinarians conducted by the New Bolton staff in 1978. The survey and the resulting clinic was carried out in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association.

Dr. Susan Donoghue, one of the veterinarians who organized the clinic, told the group the survey revealed a need in the sheep industry and the field of veterinary medicine for better communication.

"We found that half of the producers surveyed had not called a veterinarian within the last year, primarily due to cost and feelings that the veterinarians weren't knowledgeable or interested in treating sheep," she said. "But, we also discovered that on the average, it only cost $1.40 per sheep per yer for the producer's veterinary costs — that's not very much."

One disturbing find of the survey, said Donoghue, was that there seemed to be no correlation between the money spent and on vet care and the reduction in losses due to death. This points out the fact that practitioners and producers may not be treating the diseases and problems that have the most economical impact on the industry, she stated.

"Where can the producer's money best be spent?" she said is what New Bolton staff are looking at now. "We're trying to open the lines of communication between veterinarians and producers."

Penn State's Clair Engle impressed upon the group that there is "no way to separate medicine and management," adding the cliche "a penny spent on prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Engle stressed health management and its impact on a ram's reproductive efficiency, a ewe's lamb and wool production, and a lamb's ability to survive.

One pointer he shared with the producers was that most of the bank barns in Pennsylvania are not ideal housing for sheep because they do not provide the ideal ventilation. "When you vary the temperature inside the barn by more than 5 degrees of what the outside temperature is, the barn is too tight."

He pointed out the need for good sanitation, especially during lambing; good pasture management for parasite control; fresh water; properly formulated feed; dry bedding; and the need to buy 'disease free' sheep from reputable breeders and then to isolate them before turning them in with the flock.

Engle noted the majority of lamb deaths are due to scours, starvation and pneumonia. To give them a better boost for survival, he recommended the following health plan:

Within two hours after birth, the lamb should have its naval clipped two inches from the belly and then dipped in a 7 percent tincture of iodine solution. The ewe's udder should be checked for any manure tangles in the wool, and the teats should be opened and checked for milk. "I can't over emphasize the need to get colostrum into the lamb's belly," he remarked. The ewe and lamb should be kept in a 5'x5' pen with clean, dry bedding.

For the next three days, Engle said, the producer needs to observe the ewes and lambs a minimum of two times a day. "When you hang your pants on the bed post and they're cold when you put them on, you know you've been in bed too long." He noted, the lambs should be checked for alertness and that they're nursing. Their bowels should be firm and their respiratory rate should be regular--if there's 'thumping' it's time to medicate, he said.

Cooking class was not on the agenda, but Engle gave the shepherds a recommended electrolyte recipe:

Taking 1 teaspoon of light salt, add 2 teaspoons of baking soda and a 1¾ ounce box of powdered fruit pectin to a 10 ounce can of beef consomme. This mixture is diluted with 2 quarts of water and administered orally to the lamb at the rate of 1.2 ounces per pound per day for two days.

After a three day adjustment period after lambing, the ewes and lambs should be separated into groups of 6 to 8 ewes in a 35 square foot pen. Those ewes with singles should be kept separate from those ewes with twins, Engle recommended. After the lambs are 7 days old, the ewes and lambs are ready to be moved out on a dry pasture with some sort of shelter, he concluded.

David Kronfeld, DVM and professor of nutrition at the vet school, discussed one of the major problems for sheep producers — pregnancy toxemia.

He explained this disorder is caused by undernourishment. "During the last stages of pregnancy, the size of the fetus takes up too large a space in the abdominal cavity and limits the ewe's nutrient intake, all the while the fetus is drawing the ewe's blood sugar supply."

Death from this disorder occurs 3 to 7 days after the first signs of a problem, Kronfeld said, and the only treatment for it is Cesarean section.

Behavioral signs of pregnancy toxemia are the best indications to the producer that there is a problem. "Ewes with pregnancy toxemia avoid bright lights; assume odd postures; separate from the flock; and their feed drips from their mouths while they're eating, getting worse with time," Kronfeld told the group.

The best prevention is to restrict the food intake of the ewes for the first two-thirds of pregnancy, he said. During the last third, they should be fed ½ pound of concentrate per day. This rate should be increased to 2 pounds a day during the last two weeks.

Another nutrition-related disease Kronfeld discussed was 'white muscle disease' or selenium deficiency. "This is not the kind of disease that will ruin you," he said, recalling that in his native New Zealand they referred to it as 'ill thrift', because the lambs don't grow well.

Selenium deficiency occurs in young lambs, 3 to 7 weeks of age and is the result of the lambs not getting enough Vitamin E. The lambs are weak and walk with "stiff" hind legs, picking them up vertically rather than swinging them forward. "It's a complex problem involving soil, plant and animal interrelationships," said Kronfeld. On the other hand, too much selenium can be toxic to lambs, too, causing bobtail disease, he pointed out.

The shepherds and veterinarians participating in the clinic heard from Colin Johnstone, BVMS and assistant professor of parasitology on the problem of controlling parasites in sheep.

He emphasized the impact of parasites on an individual still have her," she muses when asked if she feels badly about her research having permanently 'crippled' the young horse.

"Sure it bothers me. I wouldn't do the study again because it's already proven what can happen with too much or too little Vitamin A. I suppose I rationalize by believing that Sugar has helped save hundreds of other horses from the same disaster."

Donoghue is dedicated to her research and the Center, with 14 to 16 hour days being the rule rather than the exception. "I enjoy the variety of work here at the Center — teaching, working with clients, research and experimental medicine. It's a great environment and the place where I can put my knowledge to the best use."

When asked if she found her size a handicap when working with large animals, a broad grin spread across her face as she emphatically said "No".

"No vet wrestles with the large animals — it's a matter of learning proper restraint. No — sex or size is no handicap for a veterinarian."

For relaxation, Donoghue says she sleeps and plays her banjo and guitar. She also trains and raises Russian wolfhounds. She recently has shown her Borzoi puppy, "Kira".

It's a long day for Dr. Donoghue, who says her interest in large animals only began while she was a vet student at the University of Pennsylvania, but it's a lucky day for farmers throughout the state to have her working for them.

sheep by relating how a not-uncommon infestation of 2000 worms can drain 100 cc's of blood per day from a sheep. This can amount to one-fifth of its total blood supply depending on the size of the sheep, he stressed. This drain on the sheep's blood supply results in an iron deficiency which can kill.

In attempting to control ovine parasites, Johnstone stated it's important to understand the life cycles of nematodes. He explained the adult worms live inside the sheep and produce eggs. These eggs are then secreted in the feces and hatch into larvae under the proper climatic conditions. In about 3 weeks, some species of worms have undergone the transformation from egg to infective larvae and are ready to enter their unsuspecting host as it grazes the grass.

Johnstone noted sheep have a "Spring run" of eggs right after lambing. These eggs then hatch and the larvae are ready when the lambs are weaned and beginning to graze. The key to controlling parasites, he said, is eliminating this Spring run.

Currently, there are only two drugs available to the sheep producer to chemically control the parasites in sheep. They are thiabendazole and levamisole. Johnstone told the producers and veterinarians that studies have shown parasites are now becoming resistant to thiabendazole treatments.

A general recommended worming program, noted Johnstone, would include worming the ewes 3-4 days prior to turning them out on pasture, and after they lamb. If the lambing season is spread out, the older lambs should be wormed also. This process should be repeated again in late Summer for the breeding ewes and rams. And, the entire flock should be wormed before bringing them in for the Winter, he said.

Bringing the program to a close, John Fetrow, VMD, discussed several of the most problematic diseases in the ovine industry: tetanus, entertoxemia, sore mouth, and pneumonia.

These diseases, he said, would not be a problem if producers took the time and invested in preventative medicine — vaccination. In the case of pneumonia, he remarked, producers with a history of this in their barns have a ventillation problem. "Don't be too kind to your sheep," he concluded, stressing they would rather be cold and dry than warm and wet.

mentation, the protein in the plant is not as readily available to cattle.

Silo Gas Poisoning

Safety of humans and animals is another important consideration. I mentioned silo gases earlier in the article. These gases can be killers and they can cause serious lung damage. The danger of gases increases as the level of accumulated nitrates increases. These gases are given off as the nitrates are broken down during fermentation. Being heavier than air, they can drift down the silo chute, accumulate in the silo room and float into the stable Some of these gases are odorless and colorless. Others are yellowish brown in color and are irritating to the nose. Dead birds at the base of the silo chute and coughing by cows near to an open silo room door may be other indications of their presence.

To reduce the risk of silo gas poisoning follow the suggested ensiling procedures discussed earlier. Properly ventilate recently filled silos and silo rooms before entering, and never enter a recently filled silo without having someone else nearby.

A few other practices are also necessary for making good quality silage. In addition to cutting at the proper moisture content and maturity, strive for about a one-half to three-eighth inch length of cut. Keep the knives sharp. Fill rapidly and use a distributor. Pack well. A tight, well-weighted-down cover, especially on a trench, will also help reduce surface spoilage.

All-risk insurance available for 1981

HARRISBURG — Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture is currently offering an all-risk insurance program on the farmer's crops against losses due to all unavoidable natural hazards.

FCIC is announcing the expansion of wheat insurance for the 1981 crop year into 12 more counties in the Harrisburg Region, according to Joseph G. Schmidt, FCIC Director for the Harrisburg Region.

This Region is now serving the four states of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and New York.

Pennsylvania's counties are Adams, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon, Perry, York, Berks, Crawford and Northumberland.

The Maryland counties are Caroline, Carroll, Washington, Frederick, Cecil, Kent, Queen Annes and Dorchester.

The 1981 wheat insurance program contains a number of improvements that will affect all the counties where wheat insurance is offered.

Farmers now have a choice of three levels of coverage, which will give them increased bushel per acre, for an increase in premium. Level one coverage is 50 percent of the county average normal yield. Level two coverage is 65 percent of the county average normal yield. Level three coverage is 75 percent of the county average normal yield.

Farmers also have a choice of three price elections: $3.50 per bushel, $3.00 per bushel or $2.50 per bushel. The price election is the amount of dollars the insured will receive for every bushel he is short of his guarantee. The price election per bushel will determine the amount of indemnity the insured will receive and the amount of premium he will pay.

The 1981 wheat insurance program offers much greater flexability and more choices for the producers to select the kind of protection they need and to adjust the premium to fit their crop financial plans.

A premium adjustment table is an added feature that provides a premium discount for favorable loss experience up to 50 percent. It also increases the premium for unfavorable loss experience.

Applications for 1981 wheat insurance are now being accepted. The final dates for acceptance, in the counties where wheat insurance is offered, are New York, August 31, 1980; Maryland, October 15, 1980; Pennsylvania, September 30, 1980.

Farmers planting wheat in more than one county need to have a separate application for each county where wheat insurance is offered.

Schmidt states now is the time to get information for the 1981 wheat insurance program for your area. Contact your local Federal Crop Insurance Office or call the Harrisburg Regional Office, 717/782-4803.

Stockdale Hereford Farm has bull power

BY SHEILA MILLER

DAYTON — Once again proving that they've got the bull power, Stockdale Hereford Farm swept the championships in the bull classes at the Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Summer Show held here last Saturday.

Though some may feel it was the home court advantage that helped them tie up the trophies (their farm lies directly adjacent to the fair grounds), their entries' track records at this past January's Farm Show and the experience in the cattle business of Judge Jim Strawn, manager of Falkland Farms, Shellsburg decry this claim.

An April, 1979 son of Graystone Trustee walked away with the grand championship trophy. DS Banner Beef 904 was also the grand champion at this past year's Pennsylvania Farm Show and the Junior Champion at the Summer Show.

Following in the reserve champion slot was Stockdale's February, 1979 bull, DS Victor 470901, a son of EDR Victor 837470. He was tagged as the Senior Champion Bull, and was the reserve grand champion at the 1980 Farm Show.

Stockdale Hereford Farm also exhibited this year's Calf Champion, DS Vindicator 916. He is a son of the famed Vindicator, one of the leading sires in the Polled Hereford breed.

Their Reserve Champion Heifer Calf entry along with their other placings earned

You're looking for ways to keep your milk production costs down. One of the best ways is to get more feeding value from your silage. And you can do that with Sila-bac® brand silage inoculant.

Silage treated with Sila-bac silage inoculant retains more of the total protein, dry matter and energy it has when you put it into your silo. Seepage is greatly reduced. You also have less spoilage and shrinkage.

Even more important is the better digestibility your herd will get from silage treated with Sila-bac silage inoculant. And that means better utilization of each ton of silage fed.

The result is lower feed cost. Every ton of silage you feed goes further. Ask your Pioneer salesman about Sila-bac silage inoculant. He'll help you make your good silage even better.

INTRODUCING

RUMA PASS

The complete dairy feed that cuts protein costs while maintaining your milk production.

If you think high milk production requires high protein, think again.

New Master Mix Ruma Pass for corn and sorghum silage feeding programs lets you feed less protein without a loss in milk production. So you save on protein while your cows continue producing at their present level.

Ruma Pass contains by-pass proteins which are not easily digested in the rumen, but are readily digested in the small intestine. The net result is more usable protein with less waste.

And you pocket the savings.

Isn't it time you had a protein break?

Wisc. ag secretary presents co-op challenges

UNIVERSITY PARK — Calling on cooperatives to take leadership in the changing world of agriculture, Gary E. Rohde, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, said, "Co-ops can and should help to maintain that tradition and structure that has made our agriculture so great."

Rohde was speaking to the nearly 2300 delegates at Penn State this week, and he made it clear that he believed family farms are an essential part of the picture of the future of agriculture. He asked cooperatives to aggressively meet some of the challenges and changes which agriculture will face in the decade of the eighties.

Rohde strongly endorsed concepts which would allow young people to enter farming and prevent the number of farms from continuing its decline. Inflation and increased demand for production land create two financial difficulties for young men entering production agriculture.

He said, "First prospective farmers are limited from gaining entry because of limited capital and equity; then, if entry is attained, larger interest and capital obligations generally create a constant threat of generating less than adequate cash flows."

Rohde says, "We need help for people to get on the farm and make it. Studies show that they need help for the first 12 years." Rohde suggested a system which would encourage established farmers to work with new young farmers by offering tax breaks and capital gains breaks. "We need those things to happen at the federal and state level."

Rohde noted cooperatives have been successful in the "input sector - the things we need for production agriculture," with farmers increasing their buying from cooperatives from 12 percent to 18 percent in the last 30 years.

He noted the tremendous changes which have taken place from 1940 to 1979, with the amount of purchased inputs such as petroleum, feed, seed, fertilizer and equipment increasing by more than 100 percent. Nonpurchased inputs, such as unpaid family labor, have declined by nearly 50 percent according to the Secretary.

"Farmers have increased their dependence on cooperatives and other non-farm agricultural industries for basic production inputs," he stated.

Pointing out that in nine of the last 11 years the index of prices paid by farmers has been higher than prices received, Rohde said, "Farmers will need to take care of cash flow problems. With increased vertical integration in agriculture, individual farmers will give up some of the decisions they make. The question is "Who will they give it up to?'"

In Rohde's opinion, cooperatives should play an even larger role in meeting this need.

Rohde called "the trend toward increased concentration" the most dramatic change that has been developing in the United States.

He pointed out the "tremendous drop" in the number of farms from 6.1 million in 1940 to 2.3 million in 1979. The average size farm has increased from 174 acres to 450 acres.

Rohde said if present policies continue, this trend will probably continue and may intensify.

Increased concentration of livestock production has created another large change in the structure of American agriculture, according to Rohde. He note that 422 feedlots, averaging 30,000 head of cattle, feed half the cattle in the United States annually.

Wisconsin Agriculture Secretary Gary E. Rohde, speaking to the National Institute on Cooperative Education pointed out the trend to larger farms and predicted a continuation of that trend.

Five thousand farms produce 70 percent of the eggs and 17,000 farms account for 90 percent of broiler production.

The 200,000 commercial dairies now operating represent one-third the number that existed in 1950. He cited technological advances and mechanization as the reason for the structural changes which have occurred in dairying.

Rohde discussed the "new and more concentrated food marketing system" which was developed because of consumer demand for more processed food and because of more food being eaten away from home. Thirty years ago, Rohde noted, 40,000 companies were involved in food manufacturing. In 1972, the number had declined to 20,000.

In some commodities, Rohde said, control over U.S. agricultural production is slowly shifting from the farm sector to the input, processing and distribution sectors. Increased control over farming could mean the loss of the independent family farm, which would create increased cost to consumers.

Rohde said, "family farmers need to continue joining together through cooperatives if they are to survive under the current agricultural structure. I see the need for cooperatives as a competitive yardstick-as an institution to provide services and as an innovator."

He said specificially that cooperatives could take leadership in the export market, in providing crucial energy for farmers and in providing for the transportation needs of agriculture.—SB

Paterno thrills 2300 at Co-op Institute

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK — The Paterno legend worked its magic Thursday night on the nearly 2300 people participating in the 1980 national Institute of Cooperative Education held at Penn State.

Joe Paterno, Penn State football coach and athletic director, wowed the audience with his special brand of humor and self-depreciating wit ("I'm just a skinny little kid from Brooklyn.") as he shared his philosophy about life - and football - with the group.

Paterno said from the start he would talk to his audience as he would to his team, and his inspirational message was impressive enough to easily imagine that it could inspire a football team to the national championship.

Members of the audience came from all over the United States and Paterno alluded to the fact that he could see tee-shirts on people from Oklahoma and Albama, two states which provided football teams which crushed his dreams. But no matter what their football loyalties, the audience responded enthusiastically as Paterno challenged and amused them Directing his remarks to the young people, Paterno urged them to be different and unique.

"We're not going to worry about peer influence. You must have enough guts to be different." He pointed out that he requires his players to wear socks to class so their teachers know they are Penn State football players. "Be your own man; Be your own woman," Paterno said.

Paterno joked about the disparaging remarks he hears about Penn State's unadorned uniforms. "They're lousy," he admitted, "But I want everyone who sees that uniform to know that's Penn State playing."

Paterno urged the young people to have pride in their family, their town, state, what they do, and their country. "Be proud of who you are. Each and every one of you is different. There is no one else like you in the whole world and there will never be another person like you. You are a unique product of God and have a unique contribution to make."

Noted for quoting poetry to fit the situation, Paterno used Browning. "A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?"

He added, "You gotta try to be the best - you must need to be number one. If you don't have the urge or the competitive zeal to get on top, life is no fun."

He said having the desire did not guarantee that you'd be number one or that you'd reach your goal, but he said, "You must try. You must set goals for yourself. Don't sell yourself short. You don't know how good you can be. Try to be better than you are."

He said he tells his team that if they're afraid to play they'll never do well, because you can't play well if you're not reckless or aggressive. Life's only fun if you're competing. Every morning when you wake up you should have a challenge."

Open patriotic, Paterno said, "We need people with guts and aggressiveness and confidence in this country today. There are things that are right that we need to stand up for and make an aggressive stand for."

Nation's soybean growers see 25% production drop

NEW ORLEANS, La. — The 1980 soybean crop will be 25 percent smaller than a "normal" crop, according to producers from 26 states attending the American Soybean Association's 60th annual meeting in New Orleans.

A survey of more than 600 conference attendees elicited 145 responses. The 145 producers farm a total of 186,116 acres or an average of 1283.5 acres each.

Only 24 of the respondents said that at this date they anticipate harvesting 100 percent of a "normal crop." All of these were in Corn Belt or Northeastern States.

Twenty others said that they anticipate harvesting less than 50 percent of a normal crop. They were scattered over the continent in 13 states.

In 20 states that double-crop soybeans, an average of 45 percent of intended acres were planted. On the average 25 percent of those planted acres will be abandoned or will not make a crop.

In Arkansas 65 percent of intended acres were planted and 46 percent will not make a crop. In Missouri 71 percent were planted but 74 percent will be abandoned. In Illinois 59 percent were planted and 25 percent will not be harvested. In Indiana 37 percent were planted and 13 percent will not be harvested.

Asked to rate soil moisture at this date, 98 farmers said it is deficient, 43 said adequate and four surplus.

Sixty-one of them said rainfall during the 1980 growing season, compared to normal, has been very short. Fifty rated it below average and 28 said average.

Only six respondents, all of them in the northern Corn Belt said rainfall had been surplus.

June-July temperatures compared to normal? Seventy-five responded "heat wave!"; another 56 said "above average"; 14 said "average"; and none responded "below average."

frontation between Kansas and Penn State in the Orange Bowl in 1968 when Penn State was losing 14-7 with two minutes to go, he recalled the circumstances of his advice to the team, but said the team won because of the dreams of its players who went for the win.

He asked, "Where are the dreams of young people today? We need people with confidence and courage to prepare themselves for when the day comes and a whole lot of people are counting on them."

Paterno urged the youth make sacrifices, education themselves, discipline themselves, listen, learn to get along with people and to believe in themselves.

"Life's no fun and not worthy of you if you are not willing to make yourself better," he stated.

With these words, the audience was on its feet in a rush of emotion and admiration for this winning coach, whose philosophy works whether its on the field or in life. The legend continues.

Maryland ag agents honored by peers

GREENBELT, Md. — Two natives of the upper Delmarva pensinsula were honored last week during the sixty-fifth annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. The event was held last week at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Roy D. Porter of Greenbelt was named Maryland winner of the Distinquished Service Award, and Robert J. Rouse of Hurlock received the NACAA achievement award for Extension agents with less than 10 years of service.

Rouse also was honored at a luncheon on Wednesday (Aug. 13) as one of 10 county agricultural agents from throughout the nation selected to make a "Search for Excellence" presentation. His topic concerned integrated pest management in soybean production.

Rouse has been employed by the University of Maryland's Extension Service since 1972, serving briefly in Dorchester and Talbot counties before assuming his present position in 1974 as an Extension agricultural agent in Caroline county.

He and Porter share the distinction of growing up in adjacent states in counties of the same name. Rouse grew up in Kent County, Delaware, near Harrington, while Porter is a native of Kent County, Maryland, near Chestertown.

Porter has been employed by the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service since 1954. He was formerly an assistant Extension agent in Queen Annes and Worcester counties. And he served as Extension agricultural agent in the latter county for seven years, starting in 1960.

1969 he became a marketing specialist at College Park for the State Board of Agriculture, forerunner of the present Maryland Department of Agriculture in Annapolis.

Since 1971, he has been the Extension coordinator of special communications at the University of Maryland in College Park.

In 1974 Porter was a winner of the NACAA career guidance award. That same year, he received the National Farm-City Council aware for urban relations. Earlier this year, he was honored by the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture Alumni chapter as recipient of the Excellence in Extension award.

In recent years, Porter has been heavily involved in public relations for Maryland agriculture, including educational displays at shopping malls, county fairs and the Maryland State Fair.

He has established a reputation for demonstrations on how consumers can make their food dollars go further with "do it yourself" meat-cutting, This has included cutting up whole chickens into retail parts; boning pork loins, and carving "high-priced" steaks from a moderately priced beef roast.

Porter holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in agriculture from the University of Maryland at College Park. His is an honorary life member of Alpha Zeta and the Maryland Cattlemen's Association.

Rouse holds a B.S. degree in farm business management from the University of Delaware and an M.S. degree in entomology from the University of Maryland at College Park. He is currently enrolled in the Advanced Graduate Specialist program at Maryland.

During the undergraduate days at Delaware he received the Alpha Zeta prize for scholastic achievement. Last year, he was selected for the Dow Study Tour and was named northeast regional winner in the NACAA environmental quality awards program.

Delaware farmers approve soybean checkoff

DOVER, Del. — A favorable vote on the Delaware Soybean Referendum was announced by the Delaware Soybean Board.

The Board's chairman, Joe Hughes, said the majority of the participating producers voted to establish a one cent per bushel checkoff on their soybeans.

This check-off starts a self-help grower investment program managed by soybean producers. Check-off funds raised will be used for educational and research projects as well as assisting in maintaining, developing and expanding markets for soybeans and soybean products.

With the favorable vote on the referendum, Delaware joins 22 other states, which produce 85 percent of the U.S. soybean crop, that have soybean grower investment programs.

Huges stated that the Delaware Soybean Board sees this vote as a clear signal that Delaware producers want to keep soybean production profitable in Delaware

From Dominican Republic to York

Frank Cerda finds future with Farm Credit

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Hispaniola, a mountainous island laced with fertile valleys, lies over five hundred miles southeast of the tip of Florida. Occupying the eastern side of the subtropic island, and claiming about two-thirds of the land mass, is the Spanish-descended country of the Dominican Republic. Haiti, with roots in the French culture, comprises the western third of the Carribean island.

It's a long way from the Dominican Republic's coffee, sugar cane and rice fields to the offices of the York Farm Credit Association. But northern York County field representative Frank Cerda has traveled that path. Though at times just a tiny bit homesick for the warm, sunny climate of his birthplace, he's made a highly successful transition to filling a vital role in the ag loan business.

"Farmers here have a better opportunity to make a living," Cerda comments. "They have the availability of credit, access to better machinery and can somewhat control the market through holding back crops. They have the tools to do these things."

He draws that comparison to the subsistence-type farming that forms the backbone of the Dominican Republic's agriculture. Nearly all the island nation's farmland is government owned, with farm families allocated as much as they can work. Land rights can be passed from father to son, tax free.

But limited crops and average small land grants of only about 25 to 30 acres per farm limit many of the families to the poverty level of a three-to-four dollar per day income. And even that is cyclical, coming mostly in one lump sum after a harvest.

"The basic problem is no open market for agriculture products," says Cerda. Products are controlled by government pricing, based on export demand for commodities like coffee, rice, red beans, tobacco and the primary island crop, sugar cane. While tobacco, rice and other crops are grown by both large and small farmers, cane is cropped almost exclusively by five large plantations, whose firms also process it there into a myriad of sweetening products.

An abundance of sugar cane has helped to create what Cerda sees as a major problem in the Dominican Republic: rum. Manufactured on the island, some for export, the liquor is "cheap and good" and readily available to help drown the frustrations of a low-income economy and limited opportunities for employment.

Schooling is provided to all children, with most finishing high school. While some government aid is available for further education, certain academic levels must be maintained.

Young farmers, says Cerda, face a limited future in agriculture. So some of them, as well as former farmers barely able to eke out a living for their families, turn to what he labels as another of the country's basic problems: the lottery.

"By becoming dealers in the lottery, which is

Del. corn yields should be good this fall

GEORGETOWN, Del. — A hasty review of leaf test results from irrigated cornfields around Delaware may mean growers can expect higher yields this year, reports University of Delaware extension agronomist William Mitchell.

Test show nitrogen levels in plants are averaging well above last year's (3.1 percent as compared to 2.9 percent for 1979). There were 26 irrigated fields with ear leaf nitrogen levels of 3.2% or above and 11 fields with levels of 3.4 percent or more.

"Given the strong relationship between ear leaf nitrogen and yield," says Mitchell, "I would expect the average yield to be at least 15 bushels better than last year, with many in the 170 to 180 bushel range.

Leaf nitrogen is only one of the yield indicators on this crop, but it's an important one, he says. So perhaps the early season hand-writing over low temperatures wasn't fully justified.

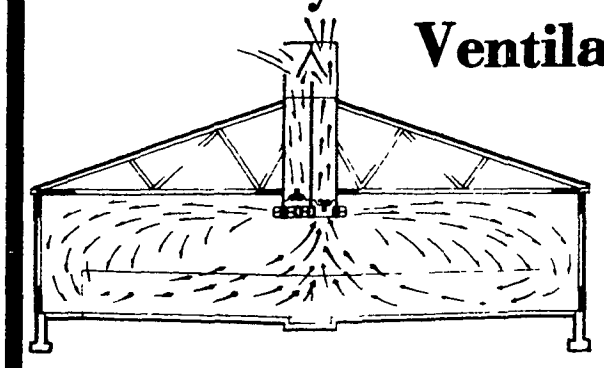
Since many growers who irrigate used less nitrogen this year than last, what's responsible for the higher corn leaf nitrogen in 1980?

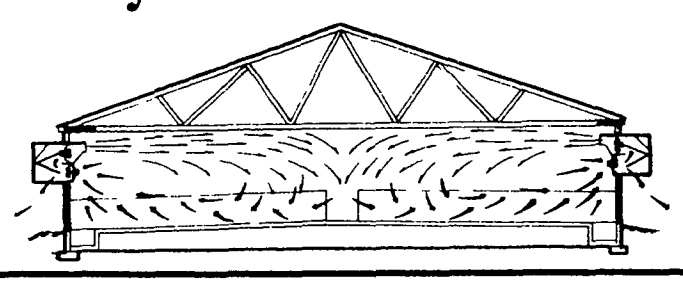
"At first glance, says Mitchell, "it would seem to be a result of less nitrogen loss during the early part of the season. I say 'loss' because we don't know how much of it went down from leaching or up from denitrification. Excessive rainfall and wet soil were responsible in either case. These test results confirm what we've observed in the field. Irrigated corn is greener this year."

TRI-COUNTY SWINE SYSTEMS

'MARTIN-AIR' PATENT PENDING

Fully Automatic Total Confinement Ventilation Systems





A unique air blending process provides even temperatures and controlled, draft-free air flow.

- Reduce animal stress
- End temperature fluctuations
- Reduce drug costs
- Reduce incidence of pneumonia and disease
- Reduce labor
- Lower condensation
- Confine manuring

Why The 'Martin-air' System is best for you

The success of Martin-air systems rests on a different concept than that used by most ventilation designs Others work by exhausting air completely then drawing cold air from outside—usually at the other end of the barn. Martin-air units use an exclusive damper system which mixes fresh air and exhaust air so the output of the unit is never more than 4°F different from the room temperature. And, at any given spot in a properly designed barn, the temperature should seldom vary more than 1°

The Martin-air principle is simple and effective. Thermostats control fan speed and a dampered mixing chamber to blend fresh air with warm air. Constant circulation throughout the building maintains uniform temperature, eliminates drafts and reduces condensation to provide a dry environment.

Mommie, where did all the nice farmland go?

I don't know. I can remember when I was a little girl...

A photographic editorial essay

Dear Aaron Stauffer:

You don't know it but you caused this story to be written and these photos to be taken.

The inspiration, no-more like a calling, came at the end of your public hearing the other Monday night in the Lincoln Fire Hall on preservation of farmland in Ephrata Township.

You gave an informal but very effective brief plea for the program you and your fellow township officials are trying to get going to save prime agricultural land.

Well, it left a lasting impression with one person — me.

I'm not a farmer and don't have some land to save. I'm a writer and a photographer. I grew up and worked on a farm through high school, but it just wasn't in the cards for my family to stay in farming.

But I make no bones about where my allegiance lies.

I appreciated a few of the statements you made at the end of the hearing. Things like saying: "I'm a farmer and I'm prejudiced in favor of farming."

We need more farmers like you who will get up in public and loudly and proudly express their prejudice.

We need more farmers like you who are governmental officials, too. Farmers who are willing to take the time to represent the interests of their friends, neighbors, heritage and livelihood.

You also spoke about stewardship of the land and I could see that you meant it. I could see that others like Amos Funk meant it, too. And those others in the audience who gently nodded their heads in approval.

So, I got to thinking that maybe I can add my voice to yours in the form of a story and some pictures.

It didn't take long to come up with the accompanying photos. Only a few hours and a few miles of driving.

I'm not trying to point fingers at any specific people, like Mr. Durkota or Mr. Weaver. I'm just trying to illustrate what I think you're saying.

The construction pictured is going on south of Ephrata. It's going to be a new K-Mart. I don't know, perhaps another shopping complex with a huge paved-over parking lot is better than the field of corn that is being starved out.

But for me, there's plenty of shopping facilities in Ephrata or Lititz already.

And I don't particularly care where Mr. Durkota sells Chryslers.

But I do have one question?

If the farmer who planted that field of soybeans, or any farmer for that matter, gets into financial trouble, will the government come up with a plan whereby a few bucks are taken off the sale of every car to help that farmer get back on his feet?

And again, I don't know. Maybe that field is better suited for cars than beans. But those beans, just now filling out their pods, looked mighty god to me.

Likewise, that tobacco field and the corn in the background behind that Warren Weaver sign look pretty good to me, too.

And when that farmland is converted to another use, whatever it may be, it is gone forever. And forever is a long time.

Well, Aaron, I hope you didn't mind me writing this open letter to you. The first time you'll read it is when about 40,000 or so other subscribers read it, too.

I hope you, Amos and the others keep speaking up. You're starting to open the too-long closed ears of farmers and non-farmers alike.

Perhaps, if enough of us listen more closely, none of us, including the young women pictured on this page, will ever have to answer that alarming question asked in the headline.

Sincerely,

Dick Anglestein

government subsidized, they create a more steady living," Cerda explains. "So the lottery creates employment—but also creates unemployment."

Since only large institutions pay taxes, and then only at very low rates on property and income, there is no broad financing base for government-provided social services. A minimal head tax is levied to obtain a citizen's identification card, but no Social Security of any kind has ever been established. Instead, a large family of children is viewed as the ultimate social security, since children are expected to help provide for their parents, even after they marry.

Farmers looking for a regular income sometimes turn to another source of steady employment, the national defense system. According to Frank, most "privates" in the country's Army, Air Force, Navy and National Guard have come from the farm

Although Cerda grew up in the outskirts of Santiago, second largest city in the Dominican Republic, his father had formerly farmed 400 acres of government land, then managed a poultry and diversified cash crops operation for a while.

During the unstable economy of the politically-restive early 1960's, the family moved to their urban home.

After high school graduation, Cerda won a spot in a class of 59 students in an agriculture institute, where he majored in tropical crops. Competition for admittance was stiff, and required passing rigorous testing against up to six hundred other applicants for the few dozen openings.

After graduation with his Bachelor of Science degree, Cerda accepted a position with the government's Agriculture Bank Although somewhat comparative to the cooperative market-funded Farm Credit system, the Dominican's government bank deals only in equipment and planting materials, but no real estate Property funding is handled through the commercial banks.

Cerda's position as a loan officer included a slight twist of county agent work thrown in. It was his responsibility to not only arrange farm loans, but to help his clients set up their farming programs of crops and commodity diversification to help maintain suitable cash flow to provide a fair living.

With a history of political instability, the Dominican Republic had been ruled by a dictatorship from 1930 through 1961. Then, during a period of unrest, the country saw nearly a dozen different heads of government come and go during a three-year period.

The voting in of a Democratic form of government in 1963 was followed by almost a year of civil war. Finally, relative calm descended and a socialist-type of government was established.

In 1977, as national elections drew near, Cerda knew that as a government employee he would be expected to support the platform. He felt an increasing reluctance to do so.

"The political situation was unstable. By then I had a family and was looking to the future. I decided to relocate," he recalls. "I knew I would find new horizons, in spite of expected problems with customs and the language, but I felt that my future was here."

"Here" was York, which Cerda had briefly visited a few years before. The occasion had been his 1975 wedding to Anne Marie, whom he had met during her mission visit to the Dominican Republic while helping to build a church. Originally from Vermont, her family had moved some years ago to the York area.

During his first three years in the York area, Cerda worked with a local nursery and landscaping firm, and then accepted a job with a computer-related company. The Farm Credit advertisement that he spied in the newspaper one day fit his background of education and experience ideally.

"I love my job", grins an enthusiastic Cerda, who's been with the York Farm Credit for over a year. "It offers me the opportunity to perform at my own level of responsibility. And the opportunities for individuals within the Farm Credit System are almost unlimited."

So the future looks bright indeed for Frank, Anne Marie and son, Frankie, now three and a half years old. And there are yet other goals he hopes to reach out for.

"I'd like to study for my Master's Degree," he confides. "And one of our dreams is to someday buy our own small farm."

California mastitis, something new?

A reader asks:

Is California mastitis getting to be more of a problem in Pennsylvania? I heard that chances of getting it in the herd go up with the size of the herd. What do you do once you've got it? How can I keep it out of my barn?

Dr. Sheaffer comments:

I'm afraid there is some confusion in the minds of some dairymen regarding California mastitis tests and a specific type of mastitis.

To help alleviate some of this confusion, it is important to remember that the California mastitis test is a cow-side test for leucocytes in milk.

California mastitis, on the other hand, has become the common name for a severe mastitis caused by mycoplasmal organisms. The confusion comes into play because it was in California where scientists first discovered that mycoplasma can cause mastitis.

Mycoplasmal organisms are not bacteria and they're not viruses — they are a class of organisms between the two, generally called pleuro-pneumonia-like organisms.

I must repeat that mycoplasma mastitis is a severe masititis. Cows suffering from this type of mastitis lose production in all four quarters and never get it back. Unable to produce milk, these affected cows have to be slaughtered.

The two most common ways of infecting your herd with this severe mastitis are both caused through poor management in the herd health program.

One way of creating an environment for this type of infection is through home-mixing mastitis tubes.

If the tubes are not completely sterilized before you put the antibiotic in them, you can actually inject mycoplasma organisms or fungal organisms into the cow's udder.

Once the mycoplasma or fungal masititis has gotten a stronghold inside your cow's udder, it is almost impossible to get it out. Mycoplasma do not respond to any of the common-used antibiotics that are available to treat mastitis today.

Over-treating mild cases of mastitis with too many different types of antibiotics can also be setting the stage for mycoplasma infection.

By continually putting a mastitis tube up a cow's quarter and injecting penicillin and tetracycline, you are in essence wiping out all the beneficial bacterium in the environment. There is no longer any natural growth inhibition on the teat or quarter after this type of mismanagement.

For any dairyman who is unfortunate enough to have mycoplasma mastitis in the herd, a strict cull and slaughter technique would be needed to clear out all affected cows. Clean cows without mastitis should be bought as replacements.

To keep this type of mastitis out of the herd, care must be practiced in selecting preparations to be injected into your cows' udders.

Use only those medications prepared by a reputable pharmaceutical company or by your veterinarian. Never home-mix several antibiotics at the farm and inject them — home-mixing in a contaminated environment is the major cause of the more severe and incurable fungal, yeast, and mycoplasma mastitis.

Jersey Assn. embarks on protein pricing road

COLUMBUS, Ohio — "The Equity Project is the most important project in the history of any dairy breed. It must take priority over all other activities."

With these words, W. Charles McGinnis, president of the American Jersey Cattle Club keynoted a special meeting of the organization's area representatives and staff in Columbus, Ohio, in early August.

The Equity Project is directed toward pricing milk on both protein and butterfat content, as opposed to the present system based on pounds of milk and butterfat percentage.

A broad educational, advertising and public relations campaign is being launched by the AJCC-NAJ. It is being funded with the voluntary investments of Jersey breeders the country-over. A target of 800 such investors in 1980 has been established.

G. Joe Lyon, president of National All-Jersey Inc. was also on the program. He noted that a change to the contemplated pricing structure would be beneficial to farmers milking cows of any breed.

Only 42 percent of all milk produced in the United States in June 1980, he said, was sold in fluid form. The remaining 58 percent went into manufactured products such as cheese, where protein is of key importance.

Jersey dairymen investing in the Equity Project and, in Lyon's words, in their own futures, are being offered a choice of three ways to participate.

They can sign a 2 cent per hundredweight check-off card to National All-Jersey Inc. on milk sold. They can send $2 per milking cow in their herds. Or they can donate either a Jersey calf or the proceeds from the sale of a cull cow.

Full particulars may be obtained from Calvin Covington, Equity Specilaist, AJCC-NAJ, Box 27310, Columbus, Ohio 43227, Phone 614/861-3636.

Barbara O'Hara's major interest is ag

Barbara is now adept at assembling the milking machine and cleaning it. She also learned to milk with a machine in the parlor, a new experience for her.

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

ANNVILLE — The average college co-ed is probably not interested in spending her summer feeding calves, scraping up barns and cleaning milking machines - especially if she doesn't live on a farm. Barbara O'Hara, however, is enthusiastic about doing all those chores and more.

An agricultural education major at Penn State, Barbara, 20, needed work experience on a farm to complete her educational requirements. She lives at 1336 E. Walnut St., Annville. After following several leads, Barbara's mother called Ray and Betty Sattazahn, R2 Lebanon, and they agreed to have Barbara spend her summer working with them.

She's been learning about farming ever since, and couldn't be happier. "Out of all the jobs I've had this is the most enjoyable one. I take my time and do what I want. I get the work done," she states.

Barbara sees the experience as a valuable part of her training for an eventual teaching position. "This summer has helped. Without the experience I don't think I could have taught vocational courses. I knew book work, but a lot of other things fit in now that I've experienced it."

She learns by doing, but also by asking. She says with a laugh, "I guess I ask a lot of questions, but you can't learn if you don't ask questions. I don't think there's any way to do it without having some type of experience."

Barbara credits the Sattazahn family with making her experience so successful. "Because they have had other kids here they really gave me a wide range of experiences. They were willing to spend time with me. I did a lot of things and they took me to a lot of things."

Staring out as a forestry major at the Penn State Berks campus, Barbara learned that jobs in that major were not what she had been expecting. "I like to work with people and I like animals. I don't think I'd like to be alone on the top of a mountain." After she gets her initial degree in ag education, she wants to pursue a Master's Degree program, and she adds thoughtfully, "I want to be able to get a job when I finish."

Her farm experience, prior to this summer, was limited to the usual pets, and through Girl Scouts she enrolled in a program whereby she worked with a veterinarian every Monday night for several months. "I learned what he was doing and I got a taste of working with animals," she recalls. With that as background and three years of ag courses behind her, Barbara says, "I really liked my ag courses, and now I figure I am where I belong. I wasn't sure before."

To get the 10 credits which her farm experience is worth academically, Barbara is keeping a daily journal and writes to her advisor every two weeks, keeping him in touch with accomplishments and problems, as any arise. She also wrote a mid-term report and will write a final report based on her journal entries and an evaluation of her entire experience.

She explained that the first time she learns a job, she explains it in detail in her journal. After that, she just notes which jobs she is doing again.

At the end of her stay, her advisor will visit and the Sattazahn's will write an evaluation of Barbara's performance.

Since the end of May, when she began her work, Barbara has learned to drive the tractor, give shots to calves, help with milking ("I couldn't milk with a machine before"), feed calves, keep calf records, dehorn, assist with calving, help with hoof trimming and clean out calf pens and the barn as needed. Unloading hay was the one job she had to give up because she found her hay fever wouldn't allow it.

Asked about her chores, Barbara says, "There's nothing I mind doing. I really like working with calves. I always talk to them as I work. I've really had a good time. I got a really broad experience."

A new experience for her was preparing a calf for showing at the Lebanon County Fair. "I had a lot of trouble getting her to walk. This is the first time I've showed," she said. The Sattazahns' daughter Barbara gave her some showing pointers which were helpful.

Barbara has been busy in college, being involved in Collegiate FFA and working with FFA activities week. She is also a member of Alpha Tau Alpha, an honorary professional society in agricultural education, and Alpha Gamma Delta, a social sorority. Intramural field hockey is also a favorite activity.

An unusual hobby for this new farm girl is that after working on the farm all day

(Turn to Page D15)

Caring for the calves was one of her favorite jobs, and she enjoyed getting to know them as she worked. Barbara's affection for the calves is readily apparent as she talks with one of her charges.

Barbara O'Hara, 20, helps with feeding chores on the farm of Ray Sattazahn, Lebanon. A senior at Penn State, Barbara is getting credit for her farm work experience.

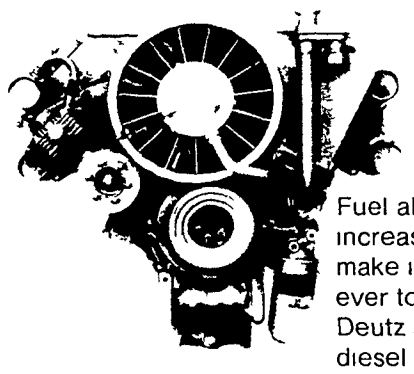
"DEUTZ DIESEL ENGINES SAVE 20 TO 40% ON FUEL"...SAYS CALIFORNIA DEALER



Fuel allocations and increased prices make it wiser than ever to switch to Deutz air-cooled diesel engines

A Bakersfield dealer* says Our customers report savings from 20 to 40% on fuel A good example is a centrifugal pumping operation that boosts water for sprinkler irrigation Pulling a continuous load of 75 to 80 bhp, the Deutz F6L 912 engine uses about 4 gallons of fuel per hour This compares with up to 5½ gallons per hour for other widely used makes in this area Where the Deutz will use 100 gallons a day other engines will use a minimum of 120 gallons That s a savings of 5 000 gallons a year for this one operation

He adds Such fuel savings will enable some farmers to continue operations where they might otherwise have to shut down

O'Hara

she went to the Lebanon Community Theatre where she was lighting designer and technician for the play, Once Upon a Mattress. "Theatre is my hobby and ever since I've been a junior in high school I always find time to do it," Barbara explained.

Barbara's summer employment is almost at an end, but she's already making plans to help with the farm work during a family vacation. She is enthusiastic about what she's learned. "I learned to work with animals as I did the chores every day. I like to work with people and as a vo-ag teacher I must work with them. I learned about that, too."

This winter she will be student teaching, and she is sure to take valuable information with her as she works with vocational agriculture students.

Passing the Peak

You made it through another Spring flush in Order 2 — the largest in 13 years — with comparatively few repercussions back at the farm. But you had handlers scrambling for markets back in April and May and some milk found a home a long way from your farm.

Some credit has to go to expanded manufacturing capacity by co-ops (particularly Eastern) as well as a vigorous purchasing program by USDA to provide the money to keep the plants running. Nobody eats pizza or cheeseburgers that fast.

Now in June, your average daily production has dropped 2.2 percent below May — the first drop since November — so you've passed the peak with hardly anyone getting hurt.

You dropped your average daily production but you also lost seven percent of last month's Class I sales (no school, remember?) to give you a Class I utilization of only 37.7 percent — the lowest in 23 years for any month.

Your June Class price provided very little help against such high production and low fluid milk sales. The Class I price of $13.93 was only nine cents better than May and the Class II price of $11.57 was only three cents better

Looking on the bright side, you can expect your blend price to go up in July. But it's only because you won't have a 40 cent Louisville Plan take out. To further cheer you up you should know that your butterfat differential for June was 16 cents — a new record high.

Numbers Count

With everyone telling you how much milk you're producing and what serious marketing problems this creates, I thought you would like to know how you got in this position and where the trend indicates you are heading.

Just remember, these are national averages but with all the programs and regulations in the dairy industry the numbers are pretty reliable. Also remember there are four numbers you have to watch to get the whole picture: first, the number of cows; second, the production per cow; third the total production and fourth, (the one most often omitted) the pounds of milk marketed, not the pounds produced but the pounds marketed.

The most consistant trends have been in numbers of cows and production per cow no matter how far back you go. In the last 20 years, numbers of cows have dropped 38 percent while milk production per cow was increasing 63 per cent.

Looking at the 1970's, your cow numbers dropped 9 percent and production per cow went up nearly 14 percent. Of that 14 percent, you jumped 11 percent just in the last five years. In fact, your milk production per cow is setting records of efficiency in livestock production.

Now let's look at total production. Of all the figures, this varies the most and ranges from a low of 115 billion pounds in 1975 to a record of 127 billion in 1964 for a difference of just over 10 percent.

So you have to ask: "If we produced that much in the past, why all the fuss now?" That's where we get to the last number you need — the pounds of milk marketed.

Would you believe that back in the 1980's when you were producing 124 billion pounds of milk, you were marketing only 114 billion pounds a year? When prices were low you kept a lot of it back on the farm and fed calves or hogs or made butter at home.

Today, it nearly all goes to market and since 1975 the pounds marketed has increased from 112 billion pounds to a record 121 billion last year. If you break the 1964 production record of 127 billion pounds in 1980 (and it looks like you will), you'll be sending a new record 124 billion pounds to market. That's what gives you marketing problems.

Finally, for the first time in 26 years, the number of cows is starting to increase — only 10,000 in March, 23,000 in April and 47,000 in May but still the first increase since 1964. If that's not a trend after only three months, then it's a sign to watch, especially when you realize that you have a record number of heifers on hand. Estimates are that you have 38 heifers for every 100 cows and that's a lot.

If it's true, the potential for increasing cow numbers is there. With your ability to increase milk production per cow, you could very quickly break all the records. In fact, you may be writing a whole new book.

The Heat's On

Yes, the heat's on to do something about all this milk coming to market and ending up in government storages.

Keep your eyes on Washington for flashes of lightning aimed at eliminating any dairy support price increase in the Fall.

Also keep your eye on the weatherman and the kind of heat he's producing in the West. Everyone's aware of the heat wave reaching all the way from Texas and Oklahoma to Missouri.

By July 10 estimates were made of a billion dollar loss of crops and livestock with no end in sight. Estimates by USDA on July 1 placed the 1980 corn crop at six percent below last year. Millions of broilers and turkeys died from the heat, and hog and beef prices reached the highest levels in more than a year.

Dairy Market News reported high heat and humidity accelerating seasonal declines in milk production in North Central and Midwest regions.

The weatherman has been cruel to farmers in the West and I sympathize with them. But he may change the dairy marketing picture faster than the Secretary of Agriculture or the Congress. So keep your eye on him.

MILWAUKEE, Wisc. — A highlight of the 1980 summer meeting of the National Mastitis Council, held in Milwaukee, was the unveiling of a mastitis training seminar which represents the most comprehensive education project ever undertaken on mastitis control

This training series entitled "Dollars and Sense of Mastitis Control" was developed by the education committee of NMC under the leadership of Dr. Nelson Philpot, internationally recognized authority on mastitis from Louisiana State University.

These slides, script, and tapes are available from the National Mastitis Council to every person concerned with mastitis control and quality milk production.

National Mastitis Council is a non-profit organization organized to promote and engage in the educational activities that encourage and coordinate scientific research in the field of mastitis control. Membership is available on a individual or organizational basis. Lend your support to the National Mastitis Council today.

THE PROFIT MAKER
MOPRO
100
SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

Steers implanted with Synovex-S gain weight faster

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Steers implanted with the estrogen Synovex-S gained 25 percent more weight than cattle without the implant, reports USDA scientist Theron S. Rumsey.

Rumsey tested weight gain and body composition in steers implanted with Synovex-S and/or fed cement kiln dust. This dust is a by-product of cement manufacturing. Over 33,000 tons of cement kiln dust is collected daily in the United States.

"In this research 28 steers were studied in four groups fed a 50 percent concentrate (primarily corn and soybean) diet. We measured and compared the effect that supplemental kiln dust had on their weight gain," explained Rumsey.

A Science and Education Administration scientist, Rumsey presented his research before the 72nd Annual Meeting of the American Society of Animal Science held last week

While one group of steers was implanted with Snynovex-S, the others were either fed the kiln dust additive; or estrogen-implanted and fed kiln dust; or were used as controls for the experiment.

Although hormone-implanted cattle fed a 2.5 percent kiln dust diet gained the most weight, the kiln dust additive did not play a prominent role. Synovex-S implanted steers fed kiln dust gained a daily average of 3.02 pounds, while those with only the hormone implants gained an average of 2.91 pounds a day.

In comparison, the control cattle gained an average of 2.47 pounds a day. Steers fed only the kiln dust gained 2.33 pounds a day.

In contrast, recent work by William Wheeler, also a USDA scientist, showed that steers fed a 3.5 percent kiln dust diet gained 28 percent more weight, and pound for pound, required 21 percent less feed, than steers on a 53 percent hay diet. Further study with kiln dust is needed to determine its role in weight gain and evaluate the differing results.

"In our research, the kiln dust seemed to have little effect on weight gain. The Synovex-implanted steers gained weight faster, and pound for pound, ate less feed," said Rumsey.

Synovex-S has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration for use in cattle, but the hormone must be implanted at least 60 days before animals are slaughtered. Steers with these implants convert feed to beef 15 percent more efficiently than those without the hormone treatment and have high carcass retention of protein, fat and minerals.

Marketing meeting set

Hog market outlook seen brighter in 1981

NEWARK, Del. — Hog prices in general are expected to be higher in 1981 than they've been this year, due in large part to a better adjustment of production levels to supply and demand, reports Unviersity of Delaware extension crops marketing specialist Carl German.

Earlier this month December futures closed at $46.05 a hundredweight, an increase over lows of a month ago.

Present hog slaughter is running below a year ago, he says. But pork supplies could become burdensome this fall when large numbers of pigs farrowed last spring come to market. Hot droughty weather this summer is reflected in lighter weight hogs presently being sold.

In view of the outlook for the year ahead, as well as the recent crisis in pork prices, the Extension Service in cooperation with the Delaware Pork Producers Association and the department of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware is holding a meeting Wednesday evening, August 27, at the Georgetown Substation.

The meeting will introduce local producers to an electronic marketing system which may help them obtain better prices for their hogs. The program will start at 7 p.m.

The system is already in use on an experimental basis in other parts of the country. It is intended to supplement traditional marketing methods by providing producers access—through use of the computer—to a greater number of buyers.

By expanding the marketing area there should be more bids on their finished hogs. This will increase their marketing opinions.

The system works very much like the egg clearing house now available to Delaware egg producers.

Dennis Henderson, a marketing specialist from Ohio State University, will be the speaker at the August 27 meeting. He will discuss the development and performance of an electronic marketing system for hogs.

Sponsors of the meeting feel that local producers—still hurting from the recent pork cost-price squeeze—will be especially interested in this new marketing technique.

Prices got so low at times this past year that it was almost impossible to earn a profit in some cases. The electronic marketing system wouldn't have done much to alter minimal profit margins then. But the system could prove to be a real asset in the future for farmers seeking additional bids for their hog marketings.

"We believe any Delaware pork producer interested in improving his marketing efficiency will find it useful to attend this meeting," says German.

Penn vet school receives equine grant

PHILADELPHIA — The Section of Large Animal Medicine at New Bolton Center, part of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, recently received a $5000 grant to support research in chronic equine diarrhea which poses both a perplexing diagnostic problem and a therapeutic dilemma for the modern veterinary practitioner.

For instance, some horses with chronic diarrhea gradually lose weight while others have diarrhea as their only problem. In addition, while there seems to be no demonstrable cause for most chronic diarrhea problems, it appears that several disease entities may result in chronic diarrhea.

During the tenure of the research project, underwritten by E.R. Squibb and Sons, cecal fistulated horses, i.e. animals with silastic (plastic) tubes implanted in the cecum, will be used to determine the relationship of increased fecal isobutyrate concentrations to chronic diarrhea.

Previous work at New Bolton Center found high concentrations of this volatile fatty acid in the manure of horses with chronic diarrhea.

A commercially available drug, iodohydroxyquin, given to horses with chronic diarrhea resulted in the alleviation of the diarrhea and suppressed isobutyrate levels.

The grant will help to further define the relationship of fecal isobutyrate concentration to chronic diarrhea in horses.

This project on chronic equine diarrhea is part of a more extensive research effort in large animal gastroenterology at Penn's Veterinary School. Another area of investigation is abomasal displacements in cattle. Electrical activity of the abomasum (fourth stomach), muscle contraction, and pressure changes are being monitored during periods of hypo- and hypercalcemia (high blood calcium) in these animals.

A second project evaluates the efficacy of oral electrolytes in the treatment of calf diarrhea by utilizing a metabolic collection apparatus. The third study focuses on salmonellosis in horses. These aspects of gastroenterological research are under the direction of Dr. Robert H. Whitlock. He is assisted by Dr. James Becht, Dr. Jon Palmer, Dr. Debra Deem, and Judy Downer.

Fly control for livestock essential for maximum profit

CHICAGO, Ill. — With the proper control of flies, livestock owners can save many dollars each year that otherwise would be lost, reports David Howell, manager of Animal Health Research at Wayne Feeds' Research and Development Center at Libertyville, Illinois.

Flies cause irritation, annoyance, energy loss, blood loss, damage to tissue and reduced vitality among livestock, he says. This can result in reduced animal growth, decreased milk and meat production, loss of edible meat and damage to the animals' hide.

A number of products are available today to control flies, which are the most important external parasites known to livestock and dairy producers, Howell says. These products include oral larvicides, sprays, wipe-on insecticides, dust bags and backrubbers.

Some of these fly pests can terrorize animals, he claims. Some, such as horse flies and blowflies, can become so serious that death of individual animals occurs.

In addition, flies can transmit some 20 diseases, among the most notable are anaplasmosis, pinkeye and anthrax, Howell points out.

Generally speaking, flies are classified for convenience purposes into bloodsucking flies or non-bloodsucking flies.

The former include horn flies, stable flies, horse flies, deer flies and sheep keds.

Non-bloodsucking flies include face flies, house flies, heel flies, sheep botflies and blowflies. Screwworms and wool maggots are larvae from specific blowflies.

As the name implies, bloodsucking flies cause great annoyance to livestock. The bite of horse flies, deer flies and stable flies are painful. When these pests are about, animals will run in absolute frenzy to get away from them, says Howell.

Horse flies and deer flies are particularly hard to control, he notes. Their feeding habit is to swoop in, get a quick suck of blood and take off again, leaving little time for exposure to insecticides.

Face flies, horn flies, stable flies and house flies all breed in manure. Therefore, Howell says, what may become the most important method of control is feeding oral larvicides that will carry through the manure making it toxic to fly maggots.

Many adult face flies, horn flies, stable flies and house flies are also susceptible to locally-applied insecticides. Sprays and wipe-on insecticides are the most effective against these kinds of flies, Howell says.

Both backrubbers and dustbags give excellent control, he says.

According to Howell, heel flies are best controlled by systemic organophosphate insecticides that kill the migrating larvae. These migrating larvae are known as "grubs" within structures known as "warbles". Dust applications of specific organophosphates are the most effective, if used properly according to label instructions at the right time, he adds.

Sheep keds are controlled by spraying sheep with a spray insecticide.

Blowfly maggots or "strike" in sheep are effectively treated by removal of wool from the affected areas.

Screwworms cause serious economic problems in the southeastern and southern U.S. Specific treatment of infested wounds can be undertaken with a direct dust application.

All of these insecticide products are economical and will return dividends when used correctly, Howell concludes.

Make extra bucks in your beef feedlot

LITITZ — With fall coming on it's time for both large and small beef producers to start thinking about working spring calves and replacement stock.

A sound management program including vaccinating and implanting can be worth a lot of extra dollars at market for the over-6000 beef producers in Pennsylvania.

Herbert Lloyd of Syntex Agribusiness, makers of Synovex, and Pennsylvania state extension veterinarians recommend the following program for working the weaned and replacement feeder calves:

Vaccinate for IBR, BVD, and Blackleg.

Select a competitively priced wormer and use it during processing.

Control grubs and lice. Methods will vary so follow manufacturer's directions.

Inject with vitamins A, D and E.

Implant feeder cattle with the approved product of choice. University research across the country shows market improvement in feed conversion and rate of gain by implanting feeder cattle.

It's no time for short-cuts. You're working the calves anyway, so why not take the extra time and do it right?

Whether you're a large or small producer, it's a good idea to talk with your local veterinarian about problems in your area and follow his advice.
